Angry U. S. Soldiers Hunt Red Korean Ambushers

Two Gls Slain, Baltimorean Badly Wounded

CHUNYANG-DONG, South Korea (AP) — Angry young U.S. soldiers took up patrol positions along the Korean armistice line Monday night hoping to find the North Koreans who ambushed three of their buddies, killing two and wounding the third.

Their commander, Brig. Gen. Charles Pershing Brown of the 1st Cavalry Division, denounced the attack, made in the fog early Monday, as "a violent and deliberate violation of the armistice agreement."

He said it was "the first time the North Koreans have come clear across the demilitarized zone into South Korea."

The dead are:
Pfc. Charles T. Dessart III, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dessart Jr., 4622 State Road, Drexel Hill, Pa.; and Pvt. David A. Seiler, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erich M. Seiler, Route 1, Theresa, Wis.

Listed as seriously wounded is Pfc. William L. Foster, 26, of Baltimore.

Foster was hit four times in the chest, arms and legs. He was removed to the 121st Evacuation Hospital late Monday and a lung specialist was called.

Brown said there is hope Foster will survive his wounds.

"I talked to the boy just before he went into the operating room," Brown said. "He was calm and showed a lot of courage. I told him I hope he makes it and I sure hope he does."

The demilitarized zone is a no man's land a little over two miles wide that has divided Korea since the armistice was signed 10 years ago last Saturday. It has grown up with bushes and trees and patrol duty along it is known as "stakeout."

The bullet-riddled jeep and the three troopers were found in a ditch along Zulu Road within sight of the white tape that marks the southern border of the zone. The spot is 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

Troopers went looking for their buddies when they failed to show up at sentry post they were to take over on a hill overlooking Panmunjon, said Lt. Col. William D. Lynch, commander of the 1st Reconnaissance Squadron.

Lynch speculated that there were five to seven men in the Communist patrol.

"They probably came down the stream under the cover of the fog and when they heard the jeep, hid in the grass and weeds by the bridge," he said. "We found a lot of empty shell cases for automatic weapons by the bridge."

The driver was blasted clear out of the jeep when it crossed over the bridge. His body, laced through the back by 14 bullets, was found beside the ditch. His seat cushion was still there in a pool of blood. The jeep careened off a 10-foot embankment into a ditch, barely missing a mine field. The other dead soldier was found lying behind the jeep.

The wounded soldier was sprawled on the far side.

10 More Earthquake Survivors Rescued

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Disaster specialists using extremely sensitive equipment Monday found 10 more survivors alive in building rubble nearly four days after an earthquake shattered this ancient Macedonian capital.

In another "miracle of Skopje" a crew of French experts flown here Sunday first pulled out of the ruins of her home a young Yugoslav girl.

Then moving slowly through the heaps of rubble, they picked up voice after voice with their delicate equipment and brought more survivors to the surface. All were Yugoslavs.

The first miracle of Skopje occurred Sunday when a Belgian couple was rescued by Yugoslav coal miners from the North after 55 hours beneath the rubble of the Macedonian Hotel.

Now, 80 hours and more after the earthquake and succeeding tremors knocked down buildings in the city, more were being found alive.

There was no immediate announcement whether Premier Alexander Grlickov of Macedonia would carry out his plans to bulldoze the city flat beginning Tuesday, preparatory to rebuilding the capital on a safer site to be determined later.

By late Monday the count of bodies recovered mounted toward 1,000.

Perhaps another 700 were still beneath the rubble, the premier said.

Sewers had cracked open and the stench of human waste and refuse mingled with the odor of bodies decomposing under the scorching sun. Temperatures were in the 90s.

There was the threat of a typhus epidemic.

There was the threat of damaged buildings falling on those moving in the ruins.

The government ordered evacuation of the city of 270,000 that had become a popular vacation spot for Westerners.

By Monday evening 150,000 — 35 per cent of the city's population — were gone.

They streamed out by the thousands, on foot and by any vehicle they could use, some pushing carts with a few salvaged possessions piling on them.

A growing task force of bulldozers, tractors and heavy earthmovers stood ready to plow full force into what remained of the city the moment the government gave the word.

Nearly 90 per cent of the city's buildings were either demolished or rendered unusable because of heavy damage.

Quake Strikes Iranian Village

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A strong earthquake was reported Monday to have destroyed the remote desert village of Gahum, home of about 2,500 people in Southern Iran. There was no immediate word on the plight of the residents.

The village is near Haji-Abad, about 110 miles north of the Persian Gulf town of Bandar Abbas.

The Iranian Red Lion and Sun organization also reported a quake rocked Birjand, a trade center of about 50,000 population 450 miles east of Tehran, on Sunday. Reports Monday night from Birjand said there had been no loss of life in the Sunday quake.

The Red Lion and Sun organization (Iranian equivalent of the Red Cross) rushed aid to both areas.

Last Sept. 2 one of the worst quakes in Iran's history destroyed villages in the northwest, killing more than 10,000 persons.

Three Wagner Office Pickets Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three civil rights demonstrators were arrested Monday for blocking the entrance to the office of Mayor Robert F. Wagner. The arrests were made at Wagner's personal request.

The arrests were the first made in two weeks of quiet "sit-ins" at Wagner's office, part of a city-wide civil rights movement protesting alleged job discrimination.

The case is expected to go to the jury of 11 men and one woman either Tuesday night or sometime Wednesday. Ward faces a possible 25-year prison sentence if convicted on five counts of pimping and procuring.

Syncom Working 'Extremely Well'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Space officials reported happily Monday that the first functioning satellite ever launched into a hanging orbit "is performing extremely well."

The satellite is the 79-pound Syncom 2 communication spacecraft boosted from Cape Canaveral Friday into a so-called syn-space loop of about 45,000 miles high.

With extreme clarity, over a space loop of about 45,000 miles, it already has received and re-broadcast not only voice transmissions but an instrumental performance of the Star Spangled Banner.

Harriman Tells Senators Red Boss Not Too Worried

WASHINGTON (AP) — W. Averell Harriman said Monday that Soviet Premier Khrushchev "did not appear overly concerned" about the prospects of Communist China developing a nuclear weapons system.

"He told me it would be a long, long time before they (the Red Chinese) had a nuclear capability of any importance," Harriman said.

Harriman, who is undersecretary of state, told newsmen this after launching the administration's drive for Senate ratification of a treaty which would limit nuclear weapons testing by the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

Reports coming out of the closed committee session indicated considerable caution and some skepticism but little outright hostility among senators toward the proposed pact.

Harriman Raised Question
Harriman told reporters he raised the question of Red China's nuclear progress during the course of the Moscow negotiations which resulted in the initialing of the treaty by the three powers. U.S. military leaders and other officials have said that while China may soon detonate her first nuclear bomb, she probably is a long way from developing the complicated and costly nuclear weapons and delivery system.

Harriman's remarks came after he underwent three hours of close questioning by senators about the agreement which would ban the exploding of nuclear devices in the atmosphere, in outer space and under water. Underground test still would be permitted.

Accompanying Harriman in his appearance before a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Senate Armed Services Committee and the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee was William C. Foster, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

France Won't Sign Pact
Even as they testified French President Charles de Gaulle told a news conference — as expected — that France would not sign the agreement.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, noted that Monday's session was primarily aimed at sounding out Harriman on general terms of the treaty which he initiated in Moscow last week. Formal ratification hearings won't begin until the treaty is signed. Informal sources said Secretary of State Dean Rusk will leave for Moscow Saturday or Sunday for the signing now expected to take place next week.

Senate ratification — by two thirds of the senators voting — is required for U.S. participation in the agreement.

Officials of five states—New York, New Jersey, California, Missouri and Minnesota, — told the Senate Labor group that their state FEPC laws are working well but federal legislation is needed to supplement state status against discrimination in employment.

At the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara moved to enforce his orders barring discrimination against Negro servicemen on military bases and insurrounding areas.

McNamara filled the new post of deputy assistant secretary of defense for civil rights, naming Alfred B. Fitt, 40, of Highland Park, Ill.

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. shattered eight sales and profit records in a second quarter that cleared $464 million, it said Monday in perhaps the most dazzling report in its 55-year history.

In the final three months last year, GM made more money — $497 million — but $73,461,205 of it was special income generated by disposal of its interest in Ethyl Corp. Without this non-recurring item, profit was $424 million.

Fla. Governor Says Freedom Is Rights Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Florida's Gov. Farris Bryant testified Monday that "the real issue" in the civil rights controversy is freedom.

Bryant opposed the Kennedy administration's public accommodations bill.

"It would be a tragic mistake if we tried to purchase equality for minorities, and as part of the price gave up freedom for all," he said.

He was the fourth Southern governor to appear before the Senate Commerce Committee in opposition to the bill which would prohibit racial discrimination in stores, restaurants, hotels and other places of public accommodations.

He said he does not question the federal government's power to ban discrimination, but he argued that the businessman should be free to select his customers.

"What is attempted here is to give primacy to the freedom of some to go where they wish and buy what they wish over the freedom of others who own private property," he said.

A Senate Labor subcommittee opened hearings on a bill to set up a Fair Employment Practices Commission. This legislation, which is not included in President Kennedy's civil rights program, has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee but faces a hostile Rules Committee.

Officials of five states—New York, New Jersey, California, Missouri and Minnesota, — told the Senate Labor group that their state FEPC laws are working well but federal legislation is needed to supplement state status against discrimination in employment.

Convict Stages 'Situp' On Water Tower At Prison

FORT MADISON, Iowa (UPI) — A convict Monday perched atop a lofty water tower at Iowa State Penitentiary supplied with food and water. Officials said they would let him stay until he decided to come down.

Prison warden John Bennett said William T. Bradley, 46, Sioux City, climbed the 125-foot tower about 7:30 a.m. Sunday. He took food and water in a bucket from the prison kitchen where he worked.

"We're just going to let him stay up there. It's pretty dangerous to send anyone up after him. He just wants to go up there to be stubborn, I guess," Bennett said.

Dearborn Pays Tribute To Ford

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — A small, fragile vehicle that resembles a box on bicycle wheels sits in a museum in Greenfield Village here, and Tuesday the centennial of its builder's birth will be celebrated.

He was Henry Ford, a man who played the leading role in putting the world on wheels.

The vehicle is the first automobile completed by Ford. It was finished in 1896. It still runs.

From it grew the Ford Motor Co. industrial empire, symbolized by the nearby sprawling factory complex which makes up Ford's huge Rouge plant.

Ford, who developed a mass-produced automobile and then sold it at a price the average person could afford, was born on a farm in what is now this city of 112,007, on July 30, 1863.

He died on April 7, 1947, when he was nearly 84, after a controversial lifetime which saw him:

Complete his first gasoline engine in 1893; organize the Ford Motor Co. in 1903; sell more than 15 million Model T's from 1908 to 1927; introduce the $3-a-day wage in 1914; buy complete control of his company from other stockholders in 1919; develop the V8 engine in 1932, and mass-produce great quantities of bombers during World War II.

Railroad Union Officials Urge Real Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union official said today he thinks railway labor and management could settle their work-rules dispute in "a matter of weeks" if Congress sent them back to the bargaining table.

Max Malin said that would be the prospect if Congress discards President Kennedy's proposal that the four-year-old controversy be turned over to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and lets both sides wonder what the government would do if they dragged their feet in renewed settlement efforts.

Malin is economic counsel for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The unions want Congress to set up a joint House-Senate watchdog committee to oversee new peace talks and get progress reports every 10 days.

The railroads favor the Kennedy plan.

But the unions call it compulsory arbitration. Malin said that is what the railroads want and that while it is pending there is no incentive for the industry to undertake meaningful negotiations.

Engineer union chief Roy E. Davidson said "free collective bargaining guided by truly vigorous insightful mediation . . . has been virtually unused in this case to date."

And his assistant, A.F. Zimmerman, said "aggressive, intense, persistent and vigorous" mediation is the way to avoid a nationwide railway strike which could come Aug. 29 unless Congress acts or there is a voluntary agreement.

Davidson told a reporter two weekend bargaining sessions conducted with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz had improved settlement prospects.

French Chief To Push Own Disarm Plan

Nonaggression Pact Idea Rejected; U.S. Friendship Is Cited

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle Monday refused to join the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in their Moscow accord for a limited ban on atomic tests. And he spurned the idea of an East-West nonaggression pact.

In an eagerly-awaited reply to the Big Three's successful test ban talks last week in Moscow, De Gaulle said France must continue to build its nuclear arsenal or "bid goodbye forever to security and independence."

De Gaulle announced at a news conference that France will call for a meeting "among interested parties" before the end of the year to take up France's own disarmament proposals. Presumably this would be a conference of the four nuclear powers.

While differing sharply with Washington on policy, De Gaulle declared that France's friendship with the United States is historic.

He said the nuclear club should be disbanded altogether, its nameplate demolished and the membership cards thrown into the trash can.

Would Junk All Nuclear Arms

He countered with the long-standing French contention that all nuclear arms must be junked, along with their delivery systems, and all production halted, to bring all nations down to the non-nuclear level under international supervision.

The French president made his long, rambling statement to about 800 newsmen, officials, and hangers-on at a packed news conference in the Elysee Palace. As usual, he took a series of questions, grouped them, then replied all in one burst.

"The Moscow agreement," said De Gaulle, "has not lifted the atomic menace which weighs on the world. None of the signers had renounced the use of atomic weapons and under these conditions the world situation has not been changed in any way."

"If one day the Americans and the Russians disarm, and come to the destruction and prohibition of nuclear weapons, France will then refrain from procuring them herself, but they don't seem to be at that point yet."

When the question was raised at the beginning of the news conference, the newsmen had asked if France would be willing to forego testing if the United States would give France the know-how for making a hydrogen or fusion bomb. De Gaulle's reply ignored this query.

France Is Defense Key

De Gaulle went out of his way to praise the United States as the nuclear shield for the Western world, but pointedly recalled that France is furnishing strategic real estate with its geographic position. Allied planners are well aware that an adequate defense of Western Europe requires supply lines across France.

De Gaulle rejected any nonaggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact of Soviet bloc states of Eastern Europe. He said France could never consent to a deal by the "Anglo-Saxons" and the Russians "over France's head."

Furthermore, he added, such a treaty would be completely needless as far as France is concerned since France would never strike the first blow against anyone.

This was a reply to the proposal advanced by Premier Khrushchev in the Moscow talks with Britain and the United States. In initiating the limited test ban accord, the two Western states agreed to take the matter up with their allies.

Ward Case May Go To Jury Today

LONDON (AP) — The prosecution Monday pictured Dr. Stephen Ward as a sex-for-sale broker who found promiscuous young girls for socially prominent men. It demanded that a jury convict "this thoroughly filthy fellow" on vice charges.

The defense, also summing up near the end of the six-day trial, admitted Ward was immoral but denied he collected any money for letting call girls have trysts in his swank apartment.

The case is expected to go to the jury of 11 men and one woman either Tuesday night or sometime Wednesday. Ward faces a possible 25-year prison sentence if convicted on five counts of pimping and procuring.

Syncom Working 'Extremely Well'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Space officials reported happily Monday that the first functioning satellite ever launched into a hanging orbit "is performing extremely well."

The satellite is the 79-pound Syncom 2 communication spacecraft boosted from Cape Canaveral Friday into a so-called space loop of about 45,000 miles, high.

With extreme clarity, over a space loop of about 45,000 miles, it already has received and broadcast not only voice transmissions but an instrumental performance of the Star Spangled Banner.

Small Fire, But Two Babies Die

Oakland, Calif., firemen attempt to revive 7-months-old Linda Jean Moss and her 21-months-old brother, Robert, while the mother, Mrs. Kenneth Moss, hopefully looks on. The children, victims of suffocation, were pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. Smoke from a fire starting in an electric heater which only scorched the children's bedroom floor was blamed.

Fla. Governor Says Freedom Is Rights Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Florida's Gov. Farris Bryant testified Monday that "the real issue" in the civil rights controversy is freedom.

Bryant opposed the Kennedy administration's public accommodations bill.

"It would be a tragic mistake if we tried to purchase equality for minorities, and as part of the price gave up freedom for all," he said.

He was the fourth Southern governor to appear before the Senate Commerce Committee in opposition to the bill which would prohibit racial discrimination in stores, restaurants, hotels and other places of public accommodations.

He said he does not question the federal government's power to ban discrimination, but he argued that the businessman should be free to select his customers.

"What is attempted here is to give primacy to the freedom of some to go where they wish and buy what they wish over the freedom of others who own private property," he said.

A Senate Labor subcommittee opened hearings on a bill to set up a Fair Employment Practices Commission. This legislation, which is not included in President Kennedy's civil rights program, has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee but faces a hostile Rules Committee.

Officials of five states — New York, New Jersey, California, Missouri and Minnesota — told the Senate Labor group that their state FEPC laws are working well but federal legislation is needed to supplement state status against discrimination in employment.

At the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara moved to enforce his orders barring discrimination against Negro servicemen on military bases and surrounding areas.

McNamara filled the new post of deputy assistant secretary of defense for civil rights, naming Alfred B. Fitt, 40, of Highland Park, Ill.

Milk Truck Drivers Strike In West Pa.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — About 3,000 members of the milk truck drivers union went on strike Monday sharply curtailing the supply of milk to about two million residents of Western Pennsylvania.

The strike came when members of Teamsters Local 205 and the Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Association failed to reach an agreement in a marathon last minute bargaining session.

Both sides were scheduled to resume negotiations Monday afternoon.

Convict Stages 'Situp' On Water Tower At Prison

FORT MADISON, Iowa (UPI) — A convict Monday perched atop a lofty water tower at Iowa State Penitentiary supplied with food and water. Officials said they would let him stay until he decided to come down.

Prison warden John Bennett said William T. Bradley, 46, Sioux City, climbed the 125-foot tower about 7:30 a.m. Sunday. He took food and water in a bucket from the prison kitchen where he worked.

"We're just going to let him stay up there. It's pretty dangerous to send anyone up after him. He just wants to go up there to be stubborn, I guess," Bennett said.

Dearborn Pays Tribute To Ford

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — A small, fragile vehicle that resembles a box on bicycle wheels sits in a museum in Greenfield Village here, and Tuesday the centennial of its builder's birth will be celebrated.

He was Henry Ford, a man who played the leading role in putting the world on wheels.

The vehicle is the first automobile completed by Ford. It was finished in 1896. It still runs.

From it grew the Ford Motor Co. industrial empire, symbolized by the nearby sprawling factory complex which makes up Ford's huge Rouge plant.

Ford, who developed a mass-produced automobile and then sold it at a price the average person could afford, was born on a farm in what is now this city of 112,007, on July 30, 1863.

He died on April 7, 1947, when he was nearly 84, after a controversial lifetime which saw him: Complete his first gasoline engine in 1893; organize the Ford Motor Co. in 1903; sell more than 15 million Model T's from 1908 to 1927; introduce the $3-a-day wage in 1914; buy complete control of his company from other stockholders in 1919; develop the V8 engine in 1932, and mass-produce great quantities of bombers during World War II.

GM Breaks Eight Sales, Profit Records

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. shattered eight sales and profit records in a second quarter that cleared $464 million, it said Monday in perhaps the most dazzling report in its 55-year history.

In the final three months last year, GM made more money — $497 million — but $73,461,205 of it was special income generated by disposal of its interest in Ethyl Corp. Without this non-recurring item, profit was $424 million.

Riding the crest of an unprecedented auto making boom, GM hung up new marks in four quarters and four half-year categories: Dollar sales, earnings, U.S. factory (unit) sales and worldwide factory sales.

Railroad Union Officials Urge Real Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union official said today he thinks railway labor and management could settle their work-rules dispute in "a matter of weeks" if Congress sent them back to the bargaining table.

Max Malin said that would be the prospect if Congress discards President Kennedy's proposal that the four-year-old controversy be turned over to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and lets both sides wonder what the government would do if they dragged their feet in renewed settlement efforts.

Malin is economic counsel for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The unions want Congress to set up a joint House-Senate watch-dog committee to oversee new peace talks and get progress reports every 10 days.

The railroads favor the Kennedy plan.

But the unions call it compulsory arbitration. Malin said that is what the railroads want and that while it is pending there is no incentive for the industry to undertake meaningful negotiations.

Engineer union chief Roy E. Davidson said "free collective bargaining guided by truly vigorous insightful mediation . . . has been virtually unused in this case to date."

And his assistant, A.F. Zimmerman, said "aggressive, intense, persistent and vigorous" mediation is the way to avoid a nationwide railway strike which could come Aug. 29 unless Congress acts or there is a voluntary agreement.

Davidson told a reporter two weekend bargaining sessions conducted with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz had improved settlement prospects.

French Chief To Push Own Disarm Plan

Nonaggression Pact Idea Rejected; U.S. Friendship Is Cited

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle Monday refused to join the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in their Moscow accord for a limited ban on atomic tests. And he spurned the idea of an East-West nonaggression pact.

In an eagerly-awaited reply to the Big Three's successful test ban talks last week in Moscow, De Gaulle said France must continue to build its nuclear arsenal or "bid goodbye forever to security and independence."

De Gaulle announced at a news conference that France will call for a meeting "among interested parties" before the end of the year to take up France's own disarmament proposals. Presumably this would be a conference of the four nuclear powers.

While differing sharply with Washington on policy, De Gaulle declared that France's friendship with the United States is historic.

He said the nuclear club should be disbanded altogether, its nameplate demolished and the membership cards thrown into the trash can.

Would Junk All Nuclear Arms

He countered with the long-standing French contention that all nuclear arms must be junked, along with their delivery systems, and all production halted, to bring all nations down to the non-nuclear level under international supervision.

The French president made his long, rambling statement to about 800 newsmen, officials, and hangers-on at a packed news conference in the Elysee Palace. As usual, he took a series of questions, grouped them, then replied all in one burst.

"The Moscow agreement," said De Gaulle, "has not lifted the atomic menace which weighs on the world. None of the signers had renounced the use of atomic weapons and under these conditions the world situation has not been changed in any way."

"If one day the Americans and the Russians disarm, and come to the destruction and prohibition of nuclear weapons, France will then refrain from procuring them herself, but they don't seem to be at that point yet."

When the question was raised at the beginning of the news conference, the newsmen had asked if France would be willing to forego testing if the United States would give France the know-how for making a hydrogen or fusion bomb. De Gaulle's reply ignored this query.

France Is Defense Key

De Gaulle went out of his way to praise the United States as the nuclear shield for the Western world, but pointedly recalled that France is furnishing strategic real estate with its geographic position. Allied planners are well aware that an adequate defense of Western Europe requires supply lines across France.

De Gaulle rejected any nonaggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact of Soviet bloc states of Eastern Europe. He said France could never consent to a deal by the "Anglo-Saxons" and the Russians "over France's head."

Furthermore, he added, such a treaty would be completely needless as far as France is concerned since France would never strike the first blow against anyone.

This was a reply to the proposal advanced by Premier Khrushchev in the Moscow talks with Britain and the United States. In initiating the limited test ban accord, the two Western states agreed to take the matter up with their allies.

Most Of Cambridge Restrictions Lifted

Curfew Called Off; Demonstrations Still Are Banned

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Militia law restrictions imposed July 12 after a night of racial rioting were virtually eliminated Monday by the commander of the National Guard troops garrisoned in the city.

Col. Elmer Bright called off the curfew, originally set at 10 p.m. and then moved up to midnight. Bright also said that businesses, taverns and clubs could resume normal operations.

At the height of the crisis, all taverns and liquor stores had been closed and businesses were forced to shut their doors at 7 p.m.

However, Col. Bright said that three militia law restrictions would continue to be in effect:

1. All demonstrations are banned.

2. Vehicles are subject to search and persons with firearms in their vehicles will have them confiscated and be subject to arrest.

3. Requests for mass meetings and rallies must be submitted to the National Guard commander.

About 450 National Guardsmen remain in the Eastern Shore community of 12,000. No date has been set for the Guard's withdrawal.

A truce was negotiated in Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's office July 23 after Negro and white leaders met for 1½ days.

Negroes agreed to halt further demonstrations indefinitely in return for a town charter amendment on public accommodations, complete school integration, a low-rent public housing project and appointment of a Negro interviewer to an employment office.

The amendment to allow Negroes to be served in all places of public accommodations is subject to a petition to referendum.

The deadline for filing a petition is Aug. 10, and the petition is being circulated in an effort to gather the necessary 700 signatures to force the amendment to referendum. No one will say how many persons have signed the petition to date.

There were 3,701 registered voters in the town of 12,200 on July 1. Of that number, 1,181 were in the Second Ward, the city's Negro district.

Negro leaders have been trying to get Negroes to register in case the amendment does go to referendum, but since July 1, only 16 Negroes had registered, compared with about 300 whites.

Negroes have said they would resume demonstrations if the amendment is defeated, and white city officials are conducting a behind-the-scenes campaign to discourage the petition drive.

Three Bandits Hold Up Motel

COLLEGE PARK (AP) — Three bandits held up a motel Monday, took about $375 and a car, and left the night manager chained and gagged.

The night manager, Walter G. Martz, 48, was alone when two of the three bandits walked into the motel office at 8601 Baltimore Ave., about 12:15 a.m., police reported.

A third man walked in and pulled out an automatic pistol. The first two drew guns also.

They escorted Martz upstairs to a rest room, used a dog chain and padlock to fasten him to a drain pipe and taped his mouth.

The three took the manager's car keys and drove off in his car.

The dress—300 yards of white silk organza—will be displayed in a glass case and put on view to the public shortly.

The museum already houses a great variety of royal clothing.

Fidel Firmly Entrenched, Students Say

HAVANA (AP) — A group of 58 U.S. students ended a month-long tour of Cuba Monday saying they were convinced that only a "war of incredible proportion" can unseat Fidel Castro from the Caribbean island.

They said they were convinced most Cubans support Castro although they had met individuals who have openly expressed discontent with the Cuba regime.

The students who defied a State Department ban on visits to Cuba, criticized the department for trying to prevent them from making the trip.

They said that due to the ban the American public is uninformed and misinformed about the achievements of the Castro regime.

In a statement issued at a news conference, the students defended their right to visit Cuba and said they were "prepared for harassment and possible legal prosecution" when they return home.

The State Department lifted their passports earlier this week, allowing them permission to use the documents only for a return trip of the United States. There have been indications the students will be prosecuted on their return for defying the ban.

The students hope to leave for the United States next week if travel arrangements can be made. They flew to Cuba via Europe.

The students visited Cuba at the invitation of the Castro government and were among the honored guests at the July 26th anniversary celebrations Friday.

In their statement, the students praised economic achievements the Castro government has managed despite the U.S. embargo on shipment of goods into the country.

Youth In Fatal Airplane Crash Put On Probation

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A teenager who pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge after a plane he borrowed crashed, killing his brother's fiancée, was put on probation Monday and ordered to return to school.

David A. Price, 17, Derwood, was sentenced by Judge Walter H. Moorman of Montgomery County Circuit Court to three years in the Maryland House of Correction. The sentence was made retroactive to last Oct. 22, when Price was confined in county jail three days after the death of his brother's fiancée, Bernadette Flint, 15, in a plane taken from the county airport.

The judge placed the youth on probation and forbade him to visit taverns where beer is sold.

David, who dropped out of school several years ago, also was ordered to return to school, in the eighth grade.

Mountain Climber Search Called Off

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP) — A week-long search has been abandoned for a Severna Park, Md., summer employee here missing after climbing rugged Going-to-the-Sun Mountain.

David Wilson, 21, a senior at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, reached the top of the 9,604-foot peak, where his name was found on the register. He apparently made the climb alone.

A brother of the missing youth, Steven Wilson, went out with the search parties. Both were employed at the park in tree disease control work.

The youth's father, Paul O. Wilson of Severna Park, returned home Sunday. He said he appreciated the extensive search efforts, but felt nothing more could be done. The elder Wilson was on the mountainside Saturday.

Two Deaths Up '63 Md. Traffic Count To 321

By The Associated Press

Maryland's 1963 traffic fatality count rose to 321 Monday, compared with 309 a year ago, with the death of a Baltimore teenager and a Lutherville garbage collector.

State police said Edward L. Stadelman, 18, was killed when he was thrown from a stolen tractor-trailer cab after it went through a stop sign in Havre de Grace and was struck broadside by a car.

The accident happened at the intersection of a city street and U.S. 40.

State Police said the truck had been stolen from an East Baltimore trucking terminal during the night. They were holding a 13-year-old boy who they said was driving the truck.

William H. Crowder, 53, Lutherville, was killed when he fell from the side of a garbage truck and was crushed under the wheels.

Mrs. Ethel Pumphrey, 68, of Ellicott City, Md., was killed and three others were injured when the car in which they were riding collided with a truck at the intersection of Route 115 and 315 outside Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Treated and discharged at the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital were Mrs. Pumphrey's husband, Charles, 70, Raymond Jungers, 70, and his wife, Margaret, 71, of Reisterstown, Md.

Search For Rocket Abandoned By Navy

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — An Atlantic Fleet spokesman said Monday the Navy has called off its search for a practice rocket accidentally dropped from a carrier-based airplane on Maryland's Eastern Shore last Thursday.

"We're convinced it buried itself in the ground," the spokesman said.

The practice rocket, five inches in diameter and five feet long, was dropped from a propeller-driven plane about eight miles northeast of Crisfield, Md. The rocket contained about 18 pounds of propellant and a five-pound explosive charge. The ground search of area involved was called off Sunday.

J. Donn Aikens, director of the service, said the figure was the highest in the agency's history. The service also conducted more than 51,500 occupational tests and counseling interview during the year.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Police went on a lion hunt in suburban Ruxton Monday. After beating the bushes for an hour, they flushed a partially shaved collie dog.

The four-man safari set out into the Baltimore County brush after Charles Brill, who works in the area, reported a lion on the loose.

The collie was shaved to the skin except for a mane and a ball of fur at the end of his tail. Officers said he looked exceedingly lion-like.

His name, appropriately enough, is King.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eastern Stainless Steel Corp. announced Monday its consolidated income with its marketing subsidiary, Industrial Stainless Steels Inc., increased 23 per cent the first six months of this year over the same period last year.

Net earnings were $1,265,602, compared with $1,028,905 last year.

The net earnings increase came despite a 9 per cent drop in sales. Sales for the first six months of this year were $29,387,858, compared with $32,435,296 in 1962.

FERDALE, Md. (AP) — Anne Arundel County police are holding four juveniles in connection with the theft of a cameo and $2,235 worth of rare coins from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker of Green Haven.

The Bakers found the coins missing after a boarder at their home heard the sound of breaking glass and found a youth at the door who said he had cut his foot. The boarder called police after the youth left.

The cameo was valued at $500. It and the gold pieces were missing.

Court Hearing Slated For JFK Threatener

BALTIMORE (AP) — Asst. U.S. Atty. Benjamin R. Civiletti said Monday an unemployed Virginian charged with threatening to kill President Kennedy would probably be brought to Baltimore for a court hearing.

The man, James A. Hawkins, 22, of Richmond, Va., was arrested in Mobile, Ala., Friday, after he allegedly made the threatening statement Wednesday in Laurel, Md. No date has been set for the hearing.

Civiletti said Hawkins was walking with a bag and stopped at a Laurel service station to ask directions to Washington. During the conversation with the operator, Civiletti said, Hawkins criticized Kennedy's civil rights program.

Hawkins then said he was going to Washington "to blow up the White House and kill the President," Civiletti said.

The operator called State Police who questioned Hawkins and searched his bag. It was found to contain only clothing.

Police released Hawkins, then notified Secret Service agents.

Civiletti said Hawkins apparently did not go to Washington.

Envoy To Thailand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Monday selected Graham Martin, a career diplomat now attached to the Alliance for Progress program, as U.S. ambassador to Thailand.

Martin would succeed Ambassador Kenneth T. Young upon confirmation by the Senate.

but instead went to Mobile where he said he had friends or relatives.

Hawkins appeared before a U.S. commissioner in Mobile and was held under $5,000 bond which the defendant could not post. Civiletti said the maximum penalty for "knowingly or willingly threatening the President was $1,000 fine and five years in prison."

The deadline for filing a petition is Aug. 10, and the petition is being circulated in an effort to gather the necessary 700 signatures to force the amendment to referendum. No one will say how many persons have signed the petition to date.

There were 3,701 registered voters in the town of 12,200 on July 1. Of that number, 1,181 were in the Second Ward, the city's Negro district.

Negro leaders have been trying to get Negroes to register in case the amendment does go to referendum, but since July 1, only 16 Negroes had registered, compared with about 300 whites.

Negroes have said they would resume demonstrations if the amendment is defeated, and white city officials are conducting a behind-the-scenes campaign to discourage the petition drive.

Three Bandits Hold Up Motel

COLLEGE PARK (AP)—Three bandits held up a motel Monday, took about $375 and a car, and left the night manager chained and gagged.

The night manager, Walter G. Martz, 48, was alone when two of the three bandits walked into the motel office at 8601 Baltimore Ave., about 12:15 a.m., police reported.

A third man walked in and pulled out an automatic pistol. The first two drew guns also.

They escorted Martz upstairs to a rest room, used a dog chain and padlock to fasten him to a drain pipe and taped his mouth.

The three took the manager's car keys and drove off in his car.

Fidel Firmly Entrenched, Students Say

HAVANA (AP)—A group of 58 U.S. students ended a month-long tour of Cuba Monday saying they were convinced that only a "war of incredible proportion" can unseat Fidel Castro from the Caribbean island.

They said they were convinced most Cubans support Castro although they had met individuals who have openly expressed discontent with the Cuba regime.

The students who defied a State Department ban on visits to Cuba, criticized the department for trying to prevent them from making the trip.

They said that due to the ban the American public is uninformed and misinformed about the achievements of the Castro regime.

In a statement issued at a news conference, the students defended their right to visit Cuba and said they were "prepared for harassment and possible legal prosecution" when they return home.

The State Department lifted their passports earlier this week, allowing them permission to use the documents only for a return trip of the United States. There have been indications the students will be prosecuted on their return for defying the ban.

The students hope to leave for the United States next week if travel arrangements can be made. They flew to Cuba via Europe.

The students visited Cuba at the invitation of the Castro government and were among the honored guests at the July 26th anniversary celebrations Friday.

In their statement, the students praised economic achievements the Castro government has managed despite the U.S. embargo on shipment of goods into the country.

Youth In Fatal Airplane Crash Put On Probation

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A teenager who pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge after a plane he borrowed crashed, killing his brother's fiancée, was put on probation Monday and ordered to return to school.

David A. Price, 17, Derwood, was sentenced by Judge Walter H. Moorman of Montgomery County Circuit Court to three years in the Maryland House of Correction. The sentence was made retroactive to last Oct. 22, when Price was confined in county jail three days after the death of his brother's fiancée, Bernadette Flint, 15, in a plane taken from the county airport.

The judge placed the youth on probation and forbade him to visit taverns where beer is sold.

David, who dropped out of school several years ago, also was ordered to return to school, in the eighth grade.

Mountain Climber Search Called Off

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP) — A week-long search has been abandoned for a Severna Park, Md., summer employee here missing after climbing rugged Going-to-the-Sun Mountain.

David Wilson, 21, a senior at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, reached the top of the 9,604-foot peak, where his name was found on the register. He apparently made the climb alone.

A brother of the missing youth, Steven Wilson, went out with the search parties. Both were employed at the park in tree disease control work.

The youth's father, Paul O. Wilson of Severna Park, returned home Sunday. He said he appreciated the extensive search efforts, but felt nothing more could be done. The elder Wilson was on the mountainside Saturday.

Two Deaths Up '63 Md. Traffic Count To 321

By The Associated Press

Maryland's 1963 traffic fatality count rose to 321 Monday, compared with 309 a year ago, with the death of a Baltimore teenager and a Lutherville garbage collector.

State police said Edward L. Stadelman, 18, was killed when he was thrown from a stolen tractor-trailer cab after it went through a stop sign in Havre de Grace and was struck broadside by a car.

The accident happened at the intersection of a city street and U.S. 40.

State Police said the truck had been stolen from an East Baltimore trucking terminal during the night. They were holding a 13-year-old boy who they said was driving the truck.

William H. Crowder, 53, Lutherville, was killed when he fell from the side of a garbage truck and was crushed under the wheels.

Mrs. Ethel Pumphrey, 68, of Ellicott City, Md., was killed and three others were injured when the car in which they were riding collided with a truck at the intersection of Route 115 and 315 outside Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Treated and discharged at the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital were Mrs. Pumphrey's husband, Charles, 70, Raymond Jungers, 70, and his wife, Margaret, 71, of Reisterstown, Md.

Search For Rocket Abandoned By Navy

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — An Atlantic Fleet spokesman said Monday the Navy has called off its search for a practice rocket accidentally dropped from a carrier-based airplane on Maryland's Eastern Shore last Thursday.

"We're convinced it buried itself in the ground," the spokesman said.

The practice rocket, five inches in diameter and five feet long, was dropped from a propeller-driven plane about eight miles northeast of Crisfield, Md. The rocket contained about 18 pounds of propellant and a five-pound explosive charge. The ground search of area involved was called off Sunday.

Court Hearing Slated For JFK Threatener

BALTIMORE (AP) — Asst. U.S. Atty. Benjamin R. Civiletti said Monday an unemployed Virginian charged with threatening to kill President Kennedy would probably be brought to Baltimore for a court hearing.

The man, James A. Hawkins, 22, of Richmond, Va., was arrested in Mobile, Ala., Friday, after he allegedly made the threatening statement Wednesday in Laurel, Md. No date has been set for the hearing.

Civiletti said Hawkins was walking with a bag and stopped at a Laurel service station to ask directions to Washington. During the conversation with the operator, Civiletti said, Hawkins criticized Kennedy's civil rights program.

Hawkins then said he was going to Washington "to blow up the White House and kill the President," Civiletti said.

The operator called State Police who questioned Hawkins and searched his bag. It was found to contain only clothing.

Police released Hawkins, then notified Secret Service agents. Civiletti said Hawkins apparently did not go to Washington

Ann Landers ... Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 15 years old and already a flop. I have no real friends although a lot of people pretend to like me. I get invited places but only because people feel sorry for me.

I have a fair figure and my mother says I can buy all the clothes I want, but my taste is terrible. I hate to shop because the clothes I go crazy over in the store look awful when I get them home.

I can't do anything well because I'm a clumsy cow. I'm a lousy tennis player, I can't swim, and I hate to dance. My voice is so screechy the choir teacher has asked me to just move my lips and not try to sing with the others.

I always say the wrong thing and laugh at the wrong time. Please help me before I start high school in September.—MISS NOTHING

DEAR MISS: Those who think TOO well of themselves are a pain in the neck. Your problem is the reverse and equally unattractive. It's a drag to hear people forever running themselves into the ground. Among other things it indicates that they think people are paying more attention to them than they actually are.

Get out of the habit of tuning in on yourself 100 times a day. Turn your thoughts outward — toward others. After having done your best — whether it's tennis, swimming or whatever — forget your inadequacies and concentrate on something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You might call this letter "A Warning To Widows: Stay In Your Own Home."

My husband died four months ago and my daughter and son-in-law insisted that I sell my home and come live with them. I was grief-stricken, lonely and confused when I said "yes." It was the biggest mistake I ever made.

My house is gone, my furniture is gone and I'm a guest in someone else's home. My teenage grandchildren are disrespectful and make me feel as if I am in the way. To hear them talk I wonder how I could have lived so long and learned so little.

I was once a friendly, pleasant person but now I feel like a useless, sour old woman. I gave up everything dear to me and I really didn't have to. Please tell other widows to stay where they are — even if it's a single room. I wish I had. — NOT HAPPY

DEAR NOT HAPPY: If you feel a single room would be better why don't you find one?

Some mistakes are beyond repair but this one can be remedied and I hope you do it promptly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin is getting married in August and I've been asked to be an usher. Linda, the girl I'm going with, doesn't know the bride or the groom except casually. She put a lot of heat on me to get her invited to the wedding and the reception so I did.

Last night Linda asked me what I was doing the Friday before the wedding. I told her I was going to the rehearsal dinner. She got mad and said if I went without her we were finished.

Now I don't know if I should phone my cousin and try to get Linda invited to the rehearsal dinner. My mother says Linda has a lot of gall to put me on the spot this way and that I shouldn't jump through hoops for her. I like Linda a lot and don't want to lose her. Help, please.—BOSTON BLACKIE

DEAR BOSTON: Most rehearsal dinners are for the wedding party and some out-of-town guests. Linda's demands are clearly out of line. If the friendship is going to stand or fall on this issue—I say let it fall.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Oily And Dry

If you are bothered by a shiny nose and dry, flaking cheeks, recognize the fact that you have a combination skin; then treat the dry and oily sections accordingly.

1. Always remove stale makeup with a cosmetic cleanser before changing cosmetics or before washing. Lather the nose at least three times daily with any soap prescribed for oiliness. Rinse well each time. Then apply an astringent to your nose and let it air dry.

2. The remainder of your face (the dry area) should be washed no more than once a day with a mild, facial soap — preferably before retiring. Between times, simply freshen with tepid water.

3. At bedtime and after your face is whistle-clean, cover all except your nose with a sparing layer of rich, lanolin-based lubricant. On your nose, smooth an almost invisible film of calomine lotion or any night-care product specifically made to control oily secretions.

4. Always use a powder base and be sure it is one designed for oily skin. To prevent its further drying, apply a dot of your night lubricant to your parched areas, giving the cream time to be absorbed before using your base. The effect is both easy on the skin and the eyes!

5. Cut your intake of fats and sugars to the bone. Drink at least six glasses of water and two of skimmed milk daily.

As you can see, it takes double time and double trouble to correct this problem. But since your time and trouble will double your skin beauty, you would want to procrastinate?

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

Many apparent guesses at the bridge table could be avoided, if the player would keep his over-all goal in mind. South suffered an unnecessary setback in his four spade contract when he temporarily lost sight of his objective.

West opened the ten of clubs and declarer played the jack from dummy, forcing out East's ace. The switch was to a low trump and South put up the king. On the ace of spades, East discarded a small club revealing that his partner had a certain trump trick.

South's problems centered around avoiding the loss of two diamond tricks as well as the development of his heart suit without further casualty. A discard for one of his diamonds was available on North's king of clubs, but first it was necessary to gain access to the dummy.

The ace and king of hearts were cashed and then a small heart was led. This play had the dual purpose of establishing the heart suit and getting to the North hand for the diamond discard. On the third heart, however, West foiled declarer's plans by ruffing in with the ten of spades.

It appeared highly probable to West that, if he cashed the ace of diamonds at this point, it would be the last trick for his side so, in an effort to put his opponent to the maximum guess in the diamond suit, West underled his ace hoping to find his partner with the queen. After a prolonged study, South played a small diamond from the dummy and East put up the queen. The latter was a little surprised to hold the trick, but not too much so to return a heart which West ruffed with the jack of spades. He now cashed the ace of diamonds to send the declarer down to a two trick defeat.

South was guilty of making a play in the diamond suit that could not possibly win. Every effort must be made to keep East out of the lead, for if he is permitted to return another heart West is certain to score the setting trick in that suit on an overruff. By playing the king of diamonds from dummy, it is true that declarer risks going down an extra trick if West has the queen and East the ace. But the possible loss of an extra 50 points can hardly be a matter of concern to South when the success of the contract is at stake.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 15 years old and already a flop. I have no real friends although a lot of people pretend to like me. I get invited places but only because people feel sorry for me.

I have a fair figure and my mother says I can buy all the clothes I want, but my taste is terrible. I hate to shop because the clothes I go crazy over in the store look awful when I get them home.

I can't do anything well because I'm a clumsy cow. I'm a lousy tennis player, I can't swim, and I hate to dance. My voice is so screechy the choir teacher has asked me to just move my lips and not try to sing with the others.

I always say the wrong thing and laugh at the wrong time. Please help me before I start high school in September.—MISS NOTHING

DEAR MISS: Those who think TOO well of themselves are a pain in the neck. Your problem is the reverse and equally unattractive. It's a drag to hear people forever running themselves into the ground. Among other things it indicates that they think people are paying more attention to them than they actually are.

Get out of the habit of tuning in on yourself 100 times a day. Turn your thoughts outward — toward others. After having done your best — whether it's tennis, swimming or whatever — forget your inadequacies and concentrate on something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You might call this letter "A Warning To Widows: Stay In Your Own Home."

My husband died four months ago and my daughter and son-in-law insisted that I sell my home and come live with them. I was grief-stricken, lonely and confused when I said "yes." It was the biggest mistake I ever made.

My house is gone, my furniture is gone and I'm a guest in someone else's home. My teenage grandchildren are disrespectful and make me feel as if I am in the way. To hear them talk I wonder how I could have lived so long and learned so little.

I was once a friendly, pleasant person but now I feel like a useless, sour old woman. I gave up everything dear to me and I really didn't have to. Please tell other widows to stay where they are — even if it's a single room. I wish I had. — NOT HAPPY

DEAR NOT HAPPY: If you feel a single room would be better why don't you find one?

Some mistakes are beyond repair but this one can be remedied and I hope you do it promptly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin is getting married in August and I've been asked to be an usher. Linda, the girl I'm going with, doesn't know the bride or the groom except casually. She put a lot of heat on me to get her invited to the wedding and the reception so I did.

Last night Linda asked me what I was doing the Friday before the wedding. I told her I was going to the rehearsal dinner. She got mad and said if I went without her we were finished.

Now I don't know if I should phone my cousin and try to get Linda invited to the rehearsal dinner. My mother says Linda has a lot of gall to put me on the spot this way and that I shouldn't jump through hoops for her. I like Linda a lot and don't want to lose her. Help, please.—BOSTON BLACKIE

DEAR BOSTON: Most rehearsal dinners are for the wedding party and some out-of-town guests. Linda's demands are clearly out of line. If the friendship is going to stand or fall on this issue—I say let it fall.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Oily And Dry

If you are bothered by a shiny nose and dry, flaking cheeks, recognize the fact that you have a combination skin; then treat the dry and oily sections accordingly.

1. Always remove stale makeup with a cosmetic cleanser before changing cosmetics or before washing. Lather the nose at least three times daily with any soap prescribed for oiliness. Rinse well each time. Then apply an astringent to your nose and let it air dry.

2. The remainder of your face (the dry area) should be washed no more than once a day with a mild, facial soap — preferably before retiring. Between times, simply refresh with tepid water.

3. At bedtime and after your face is whistle-clean, cover all except your nose with a sparing layer of rich, lanolin-based lubricant. On your nose, smooth an almost invisible film of calomine lotion or any night-care product specifically made to control oily secretions.

4. Always use a powder base and be sure it is one designed for oily skin. To prevent its further drying, apply a dot of your night lubricant to your parched areas, giving the cream time to be absorbed before using your base. The effect is both easy on the skin and the eyes!

5. Cut your intake of fats and sugars to the bone. Drink at least six glasses of water and two of skimmed milk daily.

As you can see, it takes double time and double trouble to correct this problem. But since your time and trouble will double your skin beauty, who would want to procrastinate?

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — About one year ago Allan Sherman became one of America's hottest satirists and embarked on a career which many persons thought would make him a millionaire practically overnight.

It didn't.

Allan's representatives have been shouting throughout the country, proclaiming his talent in terms of gross box office receipts. Sherman, who is a talented and funny man, would prefer that his worth be exclaimed in terms of entertainment value. However, Hollywood and New York brass who decide on such matters insist on saying how much a performer brings into the cashbox.

Such an attitude tends to give the public a false impression of a performer's financial worth.

For instance, Sherman estimates that his records, personal appearances, television shows and nightclub appearances have made millions of dollars—for somebody.

Sherman explained details of an entertainer's financial situation by referring to a one-night engagement he recently had at the Hollywood Bowl.

"Let's take the Hollywood Bowl thing, which was big," he said. "My share theoretically comes out at about $14,000. I pay commissions on that and other expenses, including about $2,000 for promotion, a musical conductor, salary for the new Christy Minstrels singing group and $675 for an ad explaining we did such good business.

"I will end up, before taxes, with $1,500, after taxes about $400, which still isn't bad for one night."

When Sherman became a record star, he was besieged with the Hollywood crowd specializing in helping an actor get ahead. That group costs stars money.

"When you are a success all sorts of advisers grow up around you like a fungus," said Allan. "Some are nice fungi.

"One time my wife and I were going to have a party for 14 people, including my brother-in-law and sister-in-law. My manager called and asked who was coming. I told him and he said, 'A magazine wants to shoot pictures of the party' but not my in-laws.

"The manager said not to worry, he would get somebody. The party was on Friday. On Wednesday my wife gets a phone call and finds out she's giving a sit down dinner for 96 people. We needed the whole parking lot staff from a restaurant to park the cars. Also, we'd planned to serve veal scallopini. My manager said that wasn't good enough for that crowd. We served Steak Oscar."

Since then, Allan has streamlined his operation. He has gotten rid of expensive fungi.

Sherman, who appears on NBC-TV's "The Lively Ones" Aug. 1 and 29, has not soured on success, even though it costs him thousands of dollars.

"I'm trying to regroup my forces," he said. "I'm not really griping though. About a year ago, I was on the unemployment line."

Labor Leaders Back Negro For Judicial Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than a dozen labor leaders from Western Pennsylvania urged Monday the nomination of Negro Attorney Paul A. Simmons of Monongahela, Pa., as a federal district court judge.

But they got no promises at meetings with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach or Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.

Simmons, a Democrat who supported Republican Gov. William Scranton in his campaign last year, would be the first Negro to serve on the western district court bench if appointed by President Kennedy and confirmed by the Senate.

Clark told the group he would consider Simmons when he draws up a list of persons he feels are qualified for the post. The list was requested by the Justice Department, which screens applications for judgeship nominations.

A vacancy on the western district bench was caused by the recent death of Judge John W. McIlvaine.

Conference Set Tomorrow

Another in a series of meetings by the recently organized Pine Pulpwood Conference for the South Branch region of the Potomac River will be held Wednesday in Romney.

Organized to stress the economic importance of the Virginia pine, the conference aims to arrive at a program that can show the independent pulpwood producer and landowner ways to profitably grow the "scrub pine," as it is popularly known.

Wednesday's meeting will deal with a proposed day-long program during which leaders in various phases of the pulpwood and forestry industries will speak.

Spokesmen for the conference say it is estimated that more than $1,000,000 a year is being brought into the South Branch Valley through the sale of the Virginia pine.

Bill Proposes Destruction Of Old Shacks

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A bill which would permit destruction of unoccupied shacks along West Virginia highways may be included in Gov. W. W. Barron's call to the 1964 Legislature, Ray George, chairman of the Governor's Clean Up Committee, said Monday.

Meantime, George said a campaign aimed at ridding highways of as many unsightly shacks as possible—without legislation—has been started. The contest will end Oct. 15, with a trophy to be awarded to each winning county in three categories—large, medium and small.

The county showing the most progress also will get $500, he said.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 291 The failure of the attack by eight Union ironclads under Commodore Samuel Dupont on Fort Sumter, in April 1863, was followed by a more audacious mode of attack on the defenses of the harbor where the Civil War had started two years earlier.

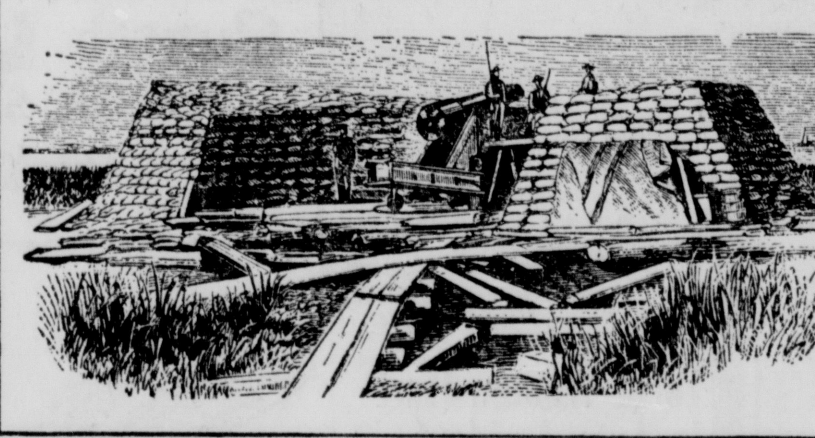

Union Army engineers were taken by Navy craft among the marshes between Morris and James Island, and provided with close-hand protection and materials. There, where the black, stinking mud was about 16 feet deep, overgrown with reeds and rank marsh grass, where it was not traversed by sluggish and treacherous winding streams, they undertook to build a redoubt.

Storms of insects assailed them, when it wasn't raining or blowing hard, while they sank piles as a foundation for a gun platform. Elements of a long-barreled, rifled, eight-inch Parrott gun, which had been built to fire a 200-pound projectile, were laboriously moved upon the platform for assembly.

The whole was anchored strongly against the concussion or recoil plunging it off into the morass. A parapet of sandbags was raised around the gun and the space provided for guncrewm, shot and powder.

The site was out of range of any guns in the defensive works of the Confederates. The Parrott, raised to a 35-degree angle, could hurl a shot five miles into Charleston. It was given an odd name, "The Swamp Angel," for the kind of visitations it inflicted upon Charleston. Incendiary shells were hurled into the center of the city. One which plunged into St. Michael's Church demolished the table of the Ten Commandments behind the chancel, excepting the portion containing the sixth and seventh Commandments. Fires were set to other buildings, but Charleston was preserved from worse by backfire that wrecked the gun. A historian wrote that "the fiery missiles turned out to be more destructive to Union gun crews than to Rebel property" (and lives).

Salvaged after the war, "The Swamp Angel" was removed to Trenton, N. J., and set up as a war monument. —Clark Kinnaird

Street Resurfacing Ordinances Planned

Ordinances will be introduced before the Mayor and Council August 19 for the resurfacing of three local streets.

While the new city budget has not been approved, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum asked for the introductory ordinances yesterday so that the city can be ready to move before bad weather if funds are made available.

The streets are Dille Street from Fairview Avenue to Sylvan Avenue; Mary Street from Virginia Avenue to the C&O Canal; and Riehl Avenue from Fairview to its end.

Nuzum also announced that Montgomery Air Service had submitted plans for a new hangar at Cumberland Municipal Airport and his recommendation that it be approved was accepted by council.

Nuzum said he had submitted the plans to W. Donald Smith, chairman of the Municipal Airport Commission, who contacted other members, and then approved the building with the reservation that Montgomery first estimate the value of the building.

Under a city contract with Montgomery, any unpaid balance on such a building should the contract be terminated, would be the responsibility of the city.

Nuzum said the building will not cost over $5,000. It will be located at the end of the field about 500

Baltimore Leaders Embark On Physical Fitness Plan

BALTIMORE (AP) — About two dozen patchy politicians, Baltimore civic leaders and businessmen sip black coffee Monday and listened to a physical culturist explain his physical fitness program for them.

"A series of exercises is planned to give a general over-all physical development," said Max Bloom, physiotherapist.

"You will be an inspiration to thousands of adults throughout the country, and there will be national publicity about you."

Grins.

"When do we start?" asked Comptroller Hyman Pressman, 160 pounds.

Harry Kaufman, chairman of the Maryland Commission on Physical Fitness whose organization is sponsoring the program, promised the participants they would begin as soon as doctors' permission had been granted.

Bloom told the breakfast meeting that his program would prolong their lives by 15 years.

"We don't want to frighten you into fitness. But what you need is loosening up and toning down," Bloom said.

Joseph I. Paper, 195 pounds of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, lowered his Danish pastry and whispered:

"You know I used to be a wrestler, but I've gained a lot of weight. Five years ago, Phil Goodman (former Baltimore mayor) and I wrestled and he beat me. Now I'll be able to beat him."

Bloom, who is a native of London, said his system "incorporates many well-tried methods of body conditioning and adds to them an essential element of competition, which gives the participant, an immediate goal, just as in any competitive sport."

Bloom said the program would last four months with each of the participants following a supervised 15 minutes schedule of exercises three times a week.

Only 15 of the 24 leaders attending the meeting were selected for the pilot program, but the others were told they were welcome to participate in the exercises.

Bloom is the originator of the Progressive Resistance - Circuit-Exercise program.

The group will be known as the 15-Club Exercise Class.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

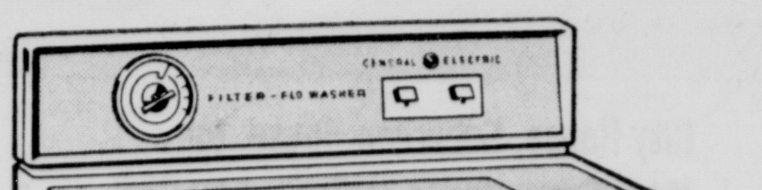

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body. This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Only A Start Toward Economy

In an unusual display of unanimity, the Defense Procurement subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress has issued a report giving high praise to procurement savings brought about by policies of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara. Not a member of the subcommittee dissented, but both Republicans and Democrats expressed a belief that greater savings were possible.

More than any other factor, creation of the Defense Supply Agency is given credit for saving—in its first 18 months of operation—$1 billion annually in military procurement costs. By 1967, reorganizations already in effect may increase annual savings to $4 billion.

Formed in January 1962, the Defense Supply Agency was designed to overcome duplication, waste and inefficient management of defense material common to the three services. It now controls the purchase, inventory and issuance of one million parts, and with 3,700 fewer employees than the agencies it replaced.

Despite the success of the DSA, the Defense Department budget still includes a high percentage of waste. Secretary McNamara estimates that competitive bids on contracts save the taxpayer 25 cents on every dollar of procurement costs, yet 87 per cent of the $26 billion spent annually on procurement remains under "negotiated" contracts. The ratio of competitive-negotiated contracts has remained fairly constant for 10 years.

Procurement savings are not the only ones to be realized in a department which has grown into the world's single largest business, but with one-fourth the total U.S. budget spent on allocated instead of competitive purchase agreements, procurement is the obvious and most lucrative target of waste-hunters.

It is also a favorite target of influence peddlers — another excellent reason why competition, not political choice, should rule the defense market place.

Cold War Education

Last week I sat through a panel discussion of Cold War education at the Governors Conference in Miami Beach. Aside from the introduction by Governor Farris Bryant of Florida of several aerial photographs of Fidel Castro's prison for political dissenters on the Isle of Pines, the panel moved on such a rarefied academic high level that it proved suffocating. Since the governors were hardly a hundred miles away from the Cold War reality of a thoroughly subverted and stricken Cuba, it is too bad that they did not avail themselves of the "education" that they might have gotten by mixing with some of the thousands of Cuban refugees who throng the Miami region. It may contribute to the education of high school students in Utah or North Carolina if the courses in civics and American history are laced with sturdy references to the principles of freedom. But a strict diet of abstractions can put the young mind to sleep. The problem that none of the governors on the panel, with the exception of Governor Bryant, seemed to recognize was the one of conveying what it feels like to be faced with Communism in the concrete.

It would have been easy to remedy the panel deficiency by summoning, say, a couple of exiled Cuban court reporters who, from a Miami base, keep a strict monitoring watch on Havana radio broadcasts, or, better yet, some young Cubans who recently took a small boat back to their home island and tangled with some of Castro's militia. They had to kill a couple of militiamen to make their escape, and they performed the astounding feat of capturing two uniformed Castromen and bringing them back to Florida. The U.S., naturally, returned the Castromen to Havana. We don't believe in tweaking Castro's beard.

The reality of the Cold War, as it is fought in southern Florida, is that our government isn't interested in helping anybody fight it. We reserve a cold malevolence for people who take the Cold War seriously. Helicopters keep close watch on suspicious looking small boats; to send agents into Cuba, the exiles have to contend not only with their enemies but with the organized police and military power of a great nation that should be on their side. The British in the Bahamas cooperate with the U.S. Coast Guard and Navy in protecting Castro against intrusions, and the British even do a fair bit of trading with the bearded tyrant who has been doing his best to contribute to the subversion of the old colony of British Guiana not far over the southern horizon. What a boon to Cold War education in American high schools if the students in Spanish classes were to be permitted to translate from the transcripts of the Cuban exiles' monitoring services which keep track of every loud whisper to the south of us.

The students might learn, for example, that it is Fidel Castro's tactics to refer to the build-up of a refugee military band in Nicaragua as something that is being promoted by partisans of the dead Dominican dictator Trujillo. (This is, of course, Fidel Castro's idea of a smear.) They might get some refracted news of the extensive Castro-aided Communist campaign of terror being conducted in Caracas, the capital of Venezuela. The terror in Caracas, so the Castroites boast and the Cuban exiles lament, is even further advanced than the very similar terror which the anti-Batista groups were sponsoring in Havana back in 1958. Bombings, the severing of pipe lines, the murder of good democrats, have become a nightly practice by the Communist FALN in Venezuela—and ranchers to the south of Caracas now carry guns to bed with them, as the British settlers in Kenya did at the height of the Mau Mau disturbances.

This is the Cold War that did not obtrude into the governors' panel discussion at the Hotel Deauville in Miami Beach save when Florida's Governor Bryant brought out his pictures. The governors know that our official federal policy is to keep Americans from trading with Castro. But Governor Romney of Michigan would have been interested to hear some of the refugees from Havana tell about auto repair parts, presumably of Michigan origin, reaching Cuba by way of Mexicana Airlines.

We need better civics and American history courses in our high schools. But we need a breath of contemporary reality in the current events courses, too.

The Test Ban: 'Still Pond, No More Moving'

WASHINGTON

By Joseph Alsop

The most obvious effect of the agreement on a nuclear test ban is to freeze the existing American and Soviet nuclear weapons systems except in the limited areas where progress can be made by underground testing.

We are undoubtedly due to hear much heated argument about the advantages and risks of this nuclear version of the old children's game called "still pond, no more moving." Hence it may be in order to offer a cool assessment of the present stage of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons development.

In the current stage of the grim nuclear art, it must be noted, the test of success is not mere destructiveness. The main test is, rather, what some of the scientists call the weight-to-bang ratio.

In other words, if you can pack more kilotonnage or megatonnage of destructive power into a given weight of bomb than your rival has managed to do, you are in the lead. The weight-to-bang ratio is so important, in turn, because light bomb-weights make for simpler delivery systems; and the delivery systems nowadays count far more than bomb stocks in all calculations of the balance of nuclear striking power.

When this test of the weight-to-bang ratio is applied to U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons development, what emerges is quite wonderfully banal. We are ahead of the Soviets in the kind of weapons we want, and have therefore tried extra-hard to develop. And the Soviets are ahead of us in the kind of weapons they want, and have therefore emphasized in their development program.

Nothing could be less unexpected. Yet the cry is already being raised in some quarters that the nuclear test ban has been agreed to when "the Soviets are ahead."

In hard-nosed Soviet circles, meanwhile, one may be pretty sure that there is grumbling about a test ban's being agreed to when "the U. S. is ahead." In both cases, the question to ask is, "Ahead, how and where?"

To be more specific, the Soviets are ahead, in terms of the weight-to-bang ratio, in the development of weapons of very high megatonnage. They have tested a 100-megaton bomb; but its estimated weight of hundreds of thousands of pounds, though fairly low for its destructive power, still forbids the use of this bomb in combination with a rocket-delivery system.

More important, the Soviets have also tested a 30-megaton bomb, whose weight is thought to be low enough to make it deliverable by their very large, powerful but cumbersome, intercontinental ballistic missiles. Warheads of this pattern may well be used for some, at least, of the second generation Soviet ICBMs comparable to our late model Titans, which are now beginning to be deployed in Russia.

The American military theorists, in contrast, have consistently held that 10 megatons was

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

RAIL STRIKE DELAY — President Kennedy continues to fall victim of circumstances in his dealings with Congress. He and his advisers hoped against hope that some last-minute way would be found to remove the threat of a nationwide railroad strike without having to ask Capitol Hill for legislation.

However, his success in having the strike postponed until the end of July may actually prove out a liability, for implicit in the postponement was a presidential decision to send legislation to Congress to deal with the transportation crisis.

The President's unwillingness to ask Congress to act in the situation is completely understandable. He doesn't want to open Pandora's box of labor legislation proposals which is almost certain to happen once the issue formally comes before Congress. However, he has solved nothing by obtaining a month's delay in the crisis.

In the first place, a month from now, Congress is almost certain to be in a more anti-administration mood than it is now. By that time, all of the opposing party-splitting forces surrounding the civil rights controversy will be in full bloom.

Congress is more likely at that time to take a dim view of any White House effort to localize the labor legislation to the railroad situation than it is now. The President could well find himself in a position where he may have to trade off some of his labor legislation desires in order to get some of his anti-segregation proposals enacted, or vice versa.

This kind of horse-trading already is looming insofar as the tax-cut, tax-reform bill is concerned. And this measure could well become involved in the same kind of legislative maneuvering with regard to the rail dispute.

In other words, every major demand Kennedy makes on Congress from here on out simply complicates his efforts to obtain passage of other major bills now before the legislators.

Pitfalls Of New Freezing Technic For Ulcers

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A year ago I devoted a column to the treatment of peptic ulcer with gastric freezing. The method takes 45 minutes and leads to immediate relief of pain. It also has been used to control intractable bleeding from the stomach and esophagus.

When chilled in this way, what happens to the lining membrane? It is not frozen, as the name of the procedure implies, but there is no doubt the temperature is reduced to near freezing levels. This suppresses the acid secreting glands and aspirating the stomach contents after freezing reveals no free hydrochloric acid. Digestion still goes on because enzymes are available in the digestive tract.

A second or third treatment is given should pain recur. At least 90 per cent of those frozen have experienced relief of symptoms for three to six months after each treatment and there is reason to believe the ulcer has healed.

But what happens later? Reports are appearing on the pitfalls and failures that can be expected when a large number of ulcer victims are treated via this technic.

This therapy is not recommended when the ulcer is deep and about to perforate. The same can be said when the exit of the stomach is obstructed because of scarring brought on from years of ulceration. Now and then a segment of the lining sloughs off, suggesting it might have been injured by chilling or freezing. At present, the procedure is nothing more than another method of treating peptic ulcer.

Many ulcer sufferers respond as readily to diet, antacids, and drugs that depress the acid secreting glands and lessen the churning movements of the stomach. This is safer and easier. On the other hand, gastric freezing is worthwhile when ordinary measures fail. It is suggested also when bleeding occurs, especially when it fails to subside within a reasonable period.

SUN ALLERGY

M. A. writes: Is it possible for a person to be so allergic to ultraviolet rays she would have to stay indoors from May to October?

REPLY

No. There is no harm in going out under sundown on rainy days. Some sensitive persons get by with sun screening lotions or salves and by wearing protective clothing, including a wide brimmed hat, long sleeves, and gloves.

DIABETES DIAGNOSIS

M. L. writes: Would taking tablets for diabetes do any harm to the body if it was decided later that the disease was not present?

REPLY

No, but why was the diagnosis in question? There are simple tests to determine the presence of diabetes. When the diagnosis is borderline, the individual does not need treatment.

President Describes His Civil Rights Legislation As Moderate

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—On the second floor of the White House, looking out over the southwest lawn and Caroline's chute-the-chutes, is an informal library with magazines on a table and easy chairs where the president lounges after hours.

There, toward the end of the day last week, a dozen Senators sipped gin and tonic, munched on hors d'oeuvres, and listened to a highly illuminating report from the President on three important problems: tax reduction, civil rights, and the test ban treaty, in that order.

The President was relaxed and appeared in excellent health. He emphasized that there must be tax reduction in order to get the economy moving again, and he urged that the Congress pass his tax proposals this year.

Kennedy described his civil rights legislation as moderate and if enacted into law would not hurt anyone, but on the other hand would be readily accepted by those and would rectify a long-time injustice.

The group included several southern Senators — John Stennis, Miss., Everett Jordan, N.C., and Spessard Holland, Fla., but only Holland spoke out in dissent. Even he, however, was not in a filibustering mood.

Brink Of War

It was in regard to the test ban agreement that the President spoke most eloquently, but with careful choice of words.

He described the treaty as moderate, but an important step toward better understanding which he felt would be to the advantage of the United States, yet did not bind us irrevocably. If another country should start testing, the parties to this agreement were released.

Should China get the atomic bomb, he said, the entire complexion of the international situation would be altered.

In emphasizing the importance of making a start toward easing world tensions, Kennedy said that three times in the past two years serious confrontations between the United States and Russia could have erupted into nuclear war. The three crises he identified as over Berlin, Laos, and Cuba.

Kennedy said he felt that Khrushchev was making test-ban concessions because he, Khrushchev, was concerned about these tensions.

"They have sobered the world," he said.

In the 1960s, he said, we were apprehensive over Russia. In the 1970s we will face the menace of China.

Note—Senators at the informal session also included Mike Mansfield, Mont., Bob Bartlett, Alaska, Howard Cannon, Nev., Vance Hartke, Ind., Stuart Symington, Mo.

JFK's Cabinet

It will be a long time before the Post Office sees another Postmaster General like Ed Day — a man of brilliant mind, high moral principles, resourceful, and with a contagious personality.

He resigned primarily for economic reasons — the pinch of living on a tight cabinet salary, after drawing down $75,000 in private life. Jim Farley, the famed PMG under FDR, couldn't do it either, rolled up a debt of $100,000.

But Ed Day, like Abe Ribicoff, who resigned last year as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, also ran up against the fact he had to deal with young whippersnappers at the White House, not the President. Kennedy seldom holds cabinet meetings, and most of the cabinet —

aside from Secretary of State Rusk, Secretary of Defense McNamara, and Secretary of the Treasury Dillon — cannot get in to see him.

Another cabinet member who is on the verge of resignation — for the same reason — is Luther Hodges, Secretary of Commerce. Hodges is a highly respected southern liberal, businessman, and ex-governor who pioneered civil rights in North Carolina far ahead of anyone else. He has done an excellent, though unpopular job of running the Commerce Department, but seldom sees his chief in the White House. He'll retire when the time is ripe.

Blocking GOP Business

Republican Congressmen, in league with Dixiecrats, are blocking one of the government banks which has been of great help to Republican businessmen. Because of their obstructionism, the charter of the Ex-Im Bank expired June 30, and $2 billion of supplemental loaning power is stymied.

The obstructionist House Republicans are: Clarence Kilburn, N.Y., William Widnall, N.J., and James Harvey, Mich. All Senate Republicans have voted just the opposite, as have Senate Democrats.

For thirty years the Ex-Im Bank has been operated on a revolving fund authorized by Congress, but drawing its money out of the treasury as needed, without coming back to Congress for specific appropriations. But the House Appropriations Committee, jealous of its power, wants to require specific appropriations.

This would mean a cumbersome, months-long routine of going through four committees — the House and Senate Banking and Currency committees and the House and Senate Appropriations Committees.

Protesting against this cumbersome red tape Albert Rains, Ala., Abe Multer, N.Y., William Barrett, Pa., all Democrats and all members of the conference committee, plus Senators John Sparkman, Ala., Joe Clark, Pa., Democrats, Jack Javits, N.Y., Republican. The vote comes up in the house today to break this conference deadlock. It will be interesting to see how many Republicans continue to block a bank which has been a Godsend to Republican businessmen.

High Road To Spain

By John Crosby

WE came into Spain on a high mountain road that runs along the sea. We had lunch at Cerbere, one last French meal before all the olive oil of Spain. Then off on the mass of hairpin turns which the Spaniards call roads. Roads anywhere else are a means of getting you from one place to another, but the Spaniards build a road, I suspect, not to get you there, but to prevent you from getting there, a test of your mettle, your spirit, your endurance—much more important to the Spaniards than getting from one place to another.

I worried about the customs, not because I was carrying any marijuana, but because it might take time. I've entered Spain when they pawed through everything. Not this time. At customs there was a man lounging in a chair. "Passport," he called out. I showed him the passport and he stamped it. "Fines," he said, and smiled. Good heavens, I thought. The Spaniards are going soft. They never smiled. They scowled, full of suspicion and dark Iberian thoughts which couldn't even be translated. Now customs guards smile like soft-drink girls. The Spaniards are entering the twentieth century and we're all the poorer for it.

The road to Cadaques contains, I should say, speaking conservatively, and with the utmost Anglo-Saxon understatement, 7,000 hairpin turns, each one worse than the last one and all complicated by potholes and perched on abysses a thousand feet deep. This is what keeps Cadaques slightly, although, God knows, not altogether, protected from the outer world.

It's perched on the sea on the road to nowhere. Once you've been to Cadaques, you've got to turn around and go back the way you came. You don't go on to the next town. Cadaques adjoins nothing but the sea.

It's a tough trip, but I'm glad I came. It's one of those little compact, breathtaking villages that the fishermen built with perfect taste, as naturally as breathing.

Then the artists came and said: "How marvelous! We hope no one ever spoils it. Or tells anyone about it. We'll leave it just as it is. But, of course, we need a bathroom."

And that's how it starts. The main street of Cadaques coils around the Mediterranean, the waves lapping at the base of it, the houses with their balconies hanging over the water. It has enormous charm, like Portofino in Italy and St. Tropez in France, which everyone tries to preserve—a losing battle the minute the movie stars arrive.

I went into a bar and asked for Mimi Cohane because I wanted to see Mimi's ruin. "Mimi is a friend of mine," said the bartender and drew a map to show where Mimi's house was.

It wasn't a very good map and I couldn't find the house, but presently I blundered into the apartment of Marcel Du Camp, the man who painted "Nude Descending a Staircase," which caused all that stir in the art world 50 years ago. "Mimi's gone," said Mrs. Duchamp, "but I'll show you her house."

At Mimi's ruin we saw workmen preserving the quaintness but putting in the bathrooms. "This will be left rough," said Mrs. Duchamp, showing me the living room. The livingroom walls are a rough stone, without plaster, looking like a Connecticut field wall. A spiral staircase, not yet finished, went up to the third floor. It'll be charming when finished. A kitchen, too. Inside one of the rooms a young man was painting a reclining nude. "He's Stephen Spender's son," said Mrs. Duchamp. "We've lived here eight years and we like it very much." The wind blew in strong from the sea and I found myself strongly drawn to Cadaques.

I toyed with the idea of going down the coast a bit and banging on the door of Salvador Dali, who lives there. But I was in a hurry and didn't. Last night, in Palamos, I mentioned Dali. Someone spoke up: "He stands at the window of his house and, if anyone ever remotely interesting appears, he bounds out and says, 'Haven't we met someplace?'"

Anyway that's what he did with me and invited me in for a drink. There was an ashtray on the floor and every time I looked at it it had moved a little. I caught it moving. I didn't say anything, so he asked me, "Didn't you notice my ashtray?" He'd fitted a plastic thing over a turtle and used that for an ashtray.

"Later some Venetian giants appeared over the horizon, ten feet tall and dressed in intricate Venetian costumes, walked toward us, bowed, and disappeared over the following hill. Dali had dressed a couple of fishermen in especially designed costumes and put them on stilts. I guess they wait for a signal and then come and bow to the guests. The whole place is like a mirage."

I was glad I'd heard about it. Dali's conceits are meant to be talked about, or written about. The actual experiences would be unsettling.

It's a nice town, Cadaques, Dali, and all. I spent all of an hour there and retain a fierce image of the place on the backs of my eyeballs. But what happens to the fishermen when the artists and the screwballs and the Brigitte Bardot and Dali come? Do they keep on fishing? Or open antique shops?

This is the Cold War that did not obtrude into the governors' panel discussion at the Hotel Deauville in Miami Beach save when Florida's Governor Bryant brought out his pictures. The governors know that our official federal policy is to keep Americans from trading with Castro. But Governor Romney of Michigan would have been interested to hear some of the refugees from Havana tell about auto repair parts, presumably of Michigan origin, reaching Cuba by way of Mexicana Airlines.

We need better civics and American history courses in our high schools. But we need a breath of contemporary reality in the current events courses, too.

The Test Ban: 'Still Pond, No More Moving'

WASHINGTON

By Joseph Alsop

The most obvious effect of the agreement on a nuclear test ban is to freeze the existing American and Soviet nuclear weapons systems except in the limited areas where progress can be made by underground testing.

We are undoubtedly due to hear much heated argument about the advantages and risks of this nuclear version of the old children's game called "still pond, no more moving." Hence it may be in order to offer a cool assessment of the present stage of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons development.

In the current stage of the grim nuclear art, it must be noted, the test of success is not mere destructiveness. The main test is, rather, what some of the scientists call the weight-to-bang ratio.

In other words, if you can pack more kilotonnage or megatonnage of destructive power into a given weight of bomb than your rival has managed to do, you are in the lead. The weight-to-bang ratio is so important, in turn, because light bomb-weights make for simpler delivery systems; and the delivery systems nowadays count far more than bomb stocks in all calculations of the balance of nuclear striking power.

When this test of the weight-to-bang ratio is applied to U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons development, what emerges is quite wonderfully banal. We are ahead of the Soviets in the kind of weapons we want, and have therefore tried extra-hard to develop. And the Soviets are ahead of us in the kind of weapons they want, and have therefore emphasized in their development program.

Nothing could be less unexpected. Yet the cry is already being raised in some quarters that the nuclear test ban has been agreed to when "the Soviets are ahead."

In hard-nosed Soviet circles, meanwhile, one may be pretty sure that there is grumbling about a test ban's being agreed to when "the U. S. is ahead." In both cases, the question to ask is, "Ahead, how and where?"

To be more specific, the Soviets are ahead, in terms of the weight-to-bang ratio, in the development of weapons of very high megatonnage. They have tested a 100-megaton bomb; but its estimated weight of hundreds of thousands of pounds, though fairly low for its destructive power, still forbids the use of this bomb in combination with a rocket-delivery system.

More important, the Soviets have also tested a 30-megaton bomb, whose weight is thought to be low enough to make it deliverable by their very large, powerful but cumbersome, intercontinental ballistic missiles. Warheads of this pattern may well be used for some, at least, of the second generation Soviet ICBMs comparable to our late model Titans, which are now beginning to be deployed in Russia.

The American military theorists, in contrast, have consistently held that 10 megatons was

RAIL STRIKE DELAY — President Kennedy continues to fall victim of circumstances in his dealings with Congress. He and his advisers hoped against hope that some last-minute way would be found to remove the threat of a nationwide railroad strike without having to ask Capitol Hill for legislation.

However, his success in having the strike postponed until the end of July may actually prove out a liability, for implicit in the postponement was a presidential decision to send legislation to Congress to deal with the transportation crisis.

The President's unwillingness to ask Congress to act in the situation is completely understandable. He doesn't want to open Pandora's box of labor legislation proposals which is almost certain to happen once the issue formally comes before Congress. However, he has solved nothing by obtaining a month's delay in the crisis.

In the first place, a month from now, Congress is almost certain to be in a more anti-administration mood than it is now. By that time, all of the opposing party-splitting forces surrounding the civil rights controversy will be in full bloom.

Congress is more likely at that time to take a dim view of any White House effort to localize the labor legislation to the railroad situation than it is now. The President could well find himself in a position where he may have to trade off some of his labor legislation desires in order to get some of his anti-segregation proposals enacted, or vice versa.

This kind of horse-trading already is looming insofar as the tax-cut, tax-reform bill is concerned. And this measure could well become involved in the same kind of legislative maneuvering with regard to the rail dispute.

In other words, every major demand Kennedy makes on Congress from here on out simply complicates his efforts to obtain passage of other major bills now before the legislators.

Pitfalls Of New Freezing Technic For Ulcers

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A year ago I devoted a column to the treatment of peptic ulcer with gastric freezing. The method takes 45 minutes and leads to immediate relief of pain. It also has been used to control intractable bleeding from the stomach and esophagus.

When chilled in this way, what happens to the lining membrane? It is not frozen, as the name of the procedure implies, but there is no doubt the temperature is reduced to near freezing levels. This suppresses the acid secreting glands and aspirating the stomach contents after freezing reveals no free hydrochloric acid. Digestion still goes on because enzymes are available in the digestive tract.

A second or third treatment is given should pain recur. At least 90 per cent of those frozen have experienced relief of symptoms for three to six months after each treatment and there is reason to believe the ulcer has healed.

But what happens later? Reports are appearing on the pitfalls and failures that can be expected when a large number of ulcer victims are treated via this technic.

This therapy is not recommended when the ulcer is deep and about to perforate. The same can be said when the exit of the stomach is obstructed because of scarring brought on from years of ulceration. Now and then a segment of the lining sloughs off, suggesting it might have been injured by chilling or freezing. At present, the procedure is nothing more than another method of treating peptic ulcer.

Many ulcer sufferers respond as readily to diet, antacids, and drugs that depress the acid secreting glands and lessen the churning movements of the stomach. This is safer and easier. On the other hand, gastric freezing is worthwhile when ordinary measures fail. It is suggested also when bleeding occurs, especially when it fails to subside within a reasonable period.

SUN ALLERGY

M. A. writes: Is it possible for a person to be so allergic to ultraviolet rays she would have to stay indoors from May to October?

REPLY

No. There is no harm in going out after sundown or on rainy days. Some sensitive persons get by with sun screening lotions or salves or by wearing protective clothing, including a wide brimmed hat, long sleeves, and gloves.

DIABETES DIAGNOSIS

M. L. writes: Would taking tablets for diabetes do any harm to the body if it was decided later that the disease was not present?

REPLY

No, but why was the diagnosis in question? There are simple tests to determine the presence of diabetes. When the diagnosis is borderline, the individual does not need treatment.

President Describes His Civil Rights Legislation As Moderate

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—On the second floor of the White House, looking out over the southwest lawn and Caroline's chute-the-chutes, is an informal library with magazines on a table and easy chairs where the president lounges after hours.

There, toward the end of the day last week, a dozen Senators sipped gin and tonic, munched on hors d'oeuvres, and listened to a highly illuminating report from the President on three important problems: tax reduction, civil rights, and the test ban treaty, in that order.

The President was relaxed and appeared in excellent health. He emphasized that there must be tax reduction in order to get the economy moving again, and he urged that the Congress pass his tax proposals this year.

Kennedy described his civil rights legislation as moderate and if enacted into law would not hurt anyone, but on the other hand would be readily accepted by those and would rectify a long-time injustice.

The group included several southern Senators — John Stennis, Miss., Everett Jordan, N.C., and Spessard Holland, Fla., but only Holland spoke out in dissent. Even he, however, was not in a filibustering mood.

Brink Of War

It was in regard to the test ban agreement that the President spoke most eloquently, but with careful choice of words.

He described the treaty as moderate, but an important step toward better understanding which he felt would be to the advantage of the United States, yet did not bind us irrevocably. If another country should start testing, the parties to this agreement were released.

Should China get the atomic bomb, he said, the entire complexion of the international situation would be altered.

In emphasizing the importance of making a start toward easing world tensions, Kennedy said that three times in the past two years serious confrontations between the United States and Russia could have erupted into nuclear war. The three crises he identified as over Berlin, Laos, and Cuba.

Kennedy said he felt that Khrushchev was making test-ban concessions because he, Khrushchev, was concerned about these tensions.

"They have sobered the world," he said.

In the 1960s, he said, we were apprehensive over Russia. In the 1970s we will face the menace of China.

Note—Senators at the informal session also included Mike Mansfield, Mont., Bob Bartlett, Alaska, Howard Cannon, Nev., Vance Hartke, Ind., Stuart Symington, Mo.

JFK's Cabinet

It will be a long time before the Post Office sees another Postmaster General like Ed Day — a man of brilliant mind, high moral principles, resourceful, and with a contagious personality.

He resigned primarily for economic reasons — the pinch of living on a tight cabinet salary, after drawing down $75,000 in private life. Jim Farley, the famed PMG under FDR, couldn't do it either, rolled up a debt of $100,000.

But Ed Day, like Abe Ribicoff, who resigned last year as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, also ran up against the fact he had to deal with young whippersnappers at the White House, not the President. Kennedy seldom holds cabinet meetings, and most of the cabinet —

aside from Secretary of State Rusk, Secretary of Defense McNamara, and Secretary of the Treasury Dillon — cannot get in to see him.

Another cabinet member who is on the verge of resignation — for the same reason — is Luther Hodges, Secretary of Commerce. Hodges is a highly respected southern liberal, businessman, and ex-governor who pioneered civil rights in North Carolina far ahead of anyone else. He has done an excellent, though unpublished job of running the Commerce Department, but seldom sees his chief in the White House. He'll retire when the time is ripe.

Blocking GOP Business

Republican Congressmen, in league with Dixiecrats, are blocking one of the government banks which has been of great help to Republican businessmen. Because of their obstructionism, the charter of the Ex-Im Bank expired June 30, and $2 billions of supplemental loaning power is stymied.

The obstructionist House Republicans are: Clarence Kilburn, N.Y., William Widnall, N.J., and James Harvey, Mich. All Senate Republicans have voted just the opposite, as have Senate Democrats.

For thirty years the Ex-Im Bank has been operated on a revolving fund authorized by Congress, but drawing its money out of the treasury as needed, without coming back to Congress for specific appropriations. But the House Appropriations Committee, jealous of its power, wants to require specific appropriations.

This would mean a cumbersome, months-long routine of going through four committees — the House and Senate Banking and Currency committees and the House and Senate Appropriations Committees.

Protesting against this cumbersome red tape Albert Rains, Ala., Abe Multer, N.Y., William Barrett, Pa., all Democrats and all members of the conference committee, plus Senators John Sparkman, Ala., Joe Clark, Pa., Democrats, Jack Javits, N.Y., Republican. The vote comes up in the house today to break this conference deadlock. It will be interesting to see how many Republicans continue to block a bank which has been a Godsend to Republican businessmen.

High Road To Spain

By John Crosby

PALAMOS, Spain
We came into Spain on a high mountain road that runs along the sea. We had lunch at Cerbere, one last French meal before all the olive oil of Spain. Then off on the mass of hairpin turns which the Spaniards call roads. Roads anywhere else are a means of getting you from one place to another, but the Spaniards build a road, I suspect, not to get you there, but to prevent you from getting there, a test of your mettle, your spirit, your endurance—much more important to the Spaniards than getting from one place to another.

I worried about the customs, not because I was carrying any marijuana, but because it might take time. I've entered Spain when they pawed through everything. Not this time. At customs there was a man lounging in a chair. "Passport," he called out. I showed him the passport and he stamped it. "Finie," he said, and smiled. Good heavens, I thought. The Spaniards are going soft. They never smiled. They scowled, full of suspicion and dark Iberian thoughts which couldn't even be translated. Now customs guards smile like soft-drink girls. The Spaniards are entering the twentieth century and we're all the poorer for it.

The road to Cadaques contains, I should say, speaking conservatively, and with the utmost Anglo-Saxon understatement, 7,000 hairpin turns, each one worse than the last one and all complicated by potholes and perched on abysses a thousand feet deep. This is what keeps Cadaques slightly, although, God knows, not altogether, protected from the outer world.

It's perched on the sea on the road to nowhere. Once you've been to Cadaques, you've got to turn around and go back the way you came. You don't go on to the next town. Cadaques adjoins nothing but the sea.

It's a tough trip, but I'm glad I came. It's one of those little compact, breathtaking villages that the fishermen built with perfect taste, as naturally as breathing. Then the artists came and said: "How marvelous! We hope no one ever spoils it. Or tells anyone about it. We'll leave it just as it is. But, of course, we need a bathroom."

And that's how it starts. The main street of Cadaques coils around the Mediterranean, the waves lapping at the base of it, the houses with their balconies hanging out over the water. It has enormous charm, like Portofino in Italy and St. Tropez in France, which everyone tries to preserve—a losing battle the minute the movie stars arrive.

I went into a bar and asked for Mimi Cohane because I wanted to see Mimi's ruin. "Mimi is a friend of mine," said the bartender and drew a map to show where Mimi's house was.

It wasn't a very good map and I couldn't find the house, but presently I blundered into the apartment of Marcel Du Camp,

the man who painted "Nude Descending a Staircase," which caused all that stir in the art world 50 years ago. "Mimi's gone," said Mrs. Duchamp, "but I'll show you her house."

At Mimi's ruin we saw workmen preserving the quaintness but putting in the bathrooms. "This will be left rough," said Mrs. Duchamp, showing me the living-room. The livingroom walls are a rough stone, without plaster, looking like a Connecticut field wall. A spiral staircase, not yet finished, went up to the third floor. It'll be charming when finished. A kitchen, too. Inside one of the rooms a young man was painting a reclining nude. "He's Stephen Spender's son," said Mrs. Duchamp. "We've lived here eight years and we like it very much." The wind blew in strong from the sea and I found myself strongly drawn to Cadaques.

I toyed with the idea of going down the coast a bit and banging on the door of Salvador Dali, who lives there. But I was in a hurry and didn't. Last night, in Palamos, I mentioned Dali. Someone spoke up: "He stands at the window of his house and, if anyone even remotely interesting appears, he bounds out and says, 'Haven't we met somewhere?'"

Anyway that's what he did with me and invited me in for a drink. There was an ashtray on the floor and every time I looked at it it had moved a little. I caught it moving. I didn't say anything, so he asked me, "Didn't you notice my ashtray?" He'd fitted a plastic thing over a turtle and used that for an ashtray.

"Later some Venetian giants appeared over the horizon, ten feet tall and dressed in intricate Venetian costumes, walked toward us, bowed, and disappeared over the following hill. Dali had dressed a couple of fishermen in especially designed costumes and put them on stilts. I guess they wait for a signal and then come and bow to the guests. The whole place is like a miracle."

I was glad I'd heard about it. Dali's conceits are meant to be talked about, or written about. The actual experiences would be unsettling.

It's a nice town, Cadaques, Dali, and all. I spent all of an hour there and retain a fierce image of the place on the backs of my eyeballs. But what happens to the fishermen when the artists and the screwballs and the Brigitte Bardot and Dali come? Do they keep on fishing? Or open antique shops?

Bids Received For New FSC Athletic Field

Cumberland Firm

FROSTBURG — The Hout Construction Company was the apparent low bidder on the construction of a new athletic field at Frostburg State College.

Base bid for the proposed project was $67,990.60, according to officials of the Maryland Department of Public Improvements, who said three alternate bids were submitted by the Hout firm.

The first alternate was for the base bid plus $700; the second, base bid plus $3,608, and the third, base bid minus $2,500.

Two other local firms also submitted bids on the project. Carl Bell Inc., offered a bid of $78,164, and S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company, $92,660. One other firm, Phoenix Equipment, offered the high bid, $98,200.

The bids have been turned over to the Board of Public Works for approval.

The new field will be located on a site recommended following a survey by engineers from the Department of Public Improvements.

The present field will be released for use as sites for a science classroom and fine arts building in the near future, according to R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State.

Natural Gas Production In Garrett Drops

County Revenue Is Cut In Half

OAKLAND — The production of natural gas in Garrett County took a big drop during the previous three-months period ending June 30, according to a report received by the Garrett County Commissioners' office.

The board received a check for $5,779.99. Three months ago it was $11,856.33, and the period before that $12,194.57. Two other periods realized $7,888.25 and $14,089.22.

The report was the second for the new year. The first $50,000 received in a year goes toward liquidation of the school building indebtedness and up to $25,000 above that amount goes toward expenses of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The four checks last year did not quite make the $50,000 total, and there was every indication that the four checks this year would be considerably less.

Some years, the total has been more than $75,000. Whether or not this year will mark the beginning of a constantly decreasing total, is not known, but if the trend continues, the annual levy will have to be increased to meet the cost of retiring the school bonds and meeting expenses at the hospital.

Statistics showed the 322,745,000 cubic feet of gas had been taken from the wells of the area compared to 658,425,000 the previous 90 days. The report covers the period April 1 to June 30 and showed an average of some three and one-half million cubic feet per day. The amount received for marketable gas was $52,371.30 compared to $189,376.10 for the previous quarter. Some checks for a three months' period have run as high as $28,900.

Thirty-four wells were listed as producing gas, two more than the previous quarter. Eighteen wells were listed under the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, one more than the previous report, but the McCullough well, added this period showed only 41,000 cubic feet for a total market value of $11. Eight wells were listed under Columbian Fuel Company and four under C and A Gas Company.

Largest produced on the list was the Herman and Hanlin well with 51,328,000 cubic feet, while Bowser well was second with over 39½ million. Barbara Miller well was third with 37,341,000, and Black and Frazee was fourth with 36,328,000. Norris K. Welch well, the area's first produced, still continues to provide substantial amounts. It was listed at 4,398,000 cubic feet for a market value of $843.20.

The breakdown showed that $2,312.00 of the check was from the purchaser's proportion of tax at 2.8 per cent of the marketable gas, and $3,467.99 from the producer's proportion of the tax at 4.2 per cent.

Since the first check for the tax on marketable gas was received by the commissioners in July, 1951, the county's governing body has received $677,618.19. A portion of this amount is distributed to incorporated towns if there are any gas wells in those areas.

The resignation accepted by the board was that of Mrs. Betty Howard who has been librarian at Fort Ashby High School.

E. M. Welshone, assistant superintendent, said that all vacancies in the high schools of the county have been filled with the exception of the library post at Fort Ashby. He added that several vacancies do exist in elementary schools with no applications yet from certified teachers.

Forest Insect Detection In W. Va. Begins

Control Study Is Inaugurated

The Forestry Division of the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources, in cooperation with the West Virginia Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Forest Service, has begun a new program of forest insect detection.

Twenty-two Department of Natural Resources foresters and two state forest superintendents have established observation areas throughout the state. These areas will be checked on a regular schedule for the presence of certain forest insects.

Insects of main interest to the foresters are the fall cankerworm, spring cankerworm, forest tent caterpillar and the variable oak leaf caterpillar, all of which affect oaks. The white - pine weevil and the red - headed sawfly are also high on the interest list, as well as any other insect or disease that may be encountered during the examinations.

Forest resource managers can achieve their management goals successfully only when the forest resources are protected from harm. Forest insects and diseases have taken a leading role in destroying resources, and to adequately control them requires first that their presence be known and their fluctuations recorded.

Landowners detecting any forest insect or disease damage are requested to report it to the Forestry Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

W. Va. Reports 'Fox Rustling'

An employe on the Rabies Control Program, which has been sponsored jointly by the West Virginia Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture and Health, related in a recent work report that he suspects "fox rustling" while trapping near the Pennsylvania border in Monongalia County.

During the 23 continuous days of trapping, the employe frequently found his sets disrupted and the trap missing with evidence pointing to a fox having been present in the trap.

Since the State of Pennsylvania pays a four dollar bounty on foxes, the trapper feels that the West Virginia animals are being "bootlegged" across the border in Pennsylvania.

C&P serves Piedmont, Ridgeley and Elk Garden. General serves the remainder of the county.

Keyser subscribers (SU-4 and SU-8) can now dial Piedmont (EL-5), Westernport (EL19) or McCoole (ST-6, in addition to the Keyser numbers.

"We are proposing," Grayson said, "that Keyser subscribers, also be able to dial directly on a toll-free basis the following exchanges: Elk Garden (HI-6), Ridgeley (RE-8), and Fort Ashby. We are also recommending that these outlying exchanges of Elk Garden, Burlington, Fort Ashby and Ridgeley be able to dial Keyser numbers on a direct toll-free basis, in addition to the numbers that they can now dial."

Grayson continued: "The ability of all county telephones to be able to call the county seat and for the county seat to be able to call all county telephones, we feel would be a great stimulus for the economy of the county. Many dollars go out of our county every year because people must pay a toll charge to call a supplier in the county."

Bids Received For New FSC Athletic Field

Cumberland Firm Appears To Be Low

FROSTBURG — The Hout Construction Company was the apparent low bidder on the construction of a new athletic field at Frostburg State College.

Base bid for the proposed project was $67,990.60, according to officials of the Maryland Department of Public Improvements, who said three alternate bids were submitted by the Hout firm.

The first alternate was for the base bid plus $700; the second, base bid plus $3,608, and the third, base bid minus $2,500.

Two other local firms also submitted bids on the project. Carl Bell Inc., offered a bid of $78,164, and S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company, $92,660. One other firm, Phoenix Equipment, offered the high bid, $98,200.

The bids have been turned over to the Board of Public Works for approval.

The new field will be located on a site recommended following a survey by engineers from the Department of Public Improvements.

The present field will be released for use as sites for a science classroom and fine arts building in the near future, according to R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State.

Natural Gas Production In Garrett Drops

County Revenue Is Cut In Half

OAKLAND—The production of natural gas in Garrett County took a big drop during the previous three-months period ending June 30, according to a report received by the Garrett County Commissioners' office.

The board received a check for $5,779.99. Three months ago it was $11,856.33, and the period before that $12,194.57. Two other periods realized $7,368.25 and $14,089.22.

The report was the second for the new year. The first $50,000 received in a year goes toward liquidation of the school building indebtedness and up to $25,000 above that amount goes toward expenses of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The four checks last year did not quite make the $50,000 total, and there was every indication that the four checks this year would be considerably less.

Some years, the total has been more than $75,000. Whether or not this year will mark the beginning of a constantly decreasing total, is not known, but if the trend continues, the annual levy will have to be increased to meet the cost of retiring the school bonds and meeting expenses at the hospital.

Statistics showed the 322,745,000 cubic feet of gas had been taken from the wells of the area compared to 658,425,000 the previous 90 days. The report covers the period April 1 to June 30 and showed an average of some three and one-half million cubic feet per day. The amount received for marketable gas was $82,571.30 compared to $169,376.10 for the previous quarter. Some checks for a three months' period have run as high as $28,000.

Thirty-four wells were listed as producing gas, two more than the previous quarter. Eighteen wells were listed under the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, one more than the previous report, but the McCullough well, added this period showed only 41,000 cubic feet for a total market value of $11. Eight wells were listed under Columbian Fuel Company and four under C and A Gas Company.

Largest produced on the list was the Herman and Hanlin well with 51,528,000 cubic feet, while Bowser well was second with over 39½ million. Barbara Miller well was third with 37,341,000, and Black and Prazee was fourth with 36,328,000. Norris K. Welch well, the area's first produced, still continues to provide substantial amounts. It was listed at 4,398,000 cubic feet for a market value of $843.20.

The breakdown showed that $2,312.00 of the check was from the purchaser's proportion of tax at 2.8 per cent of the marketable gas, and $3,467.99 from the producer's proportion of the tax at 4.2 per cent.

Since the first check for the tax on marketable gas was received by the commissioners in July, 1961, the county's governing body has received $677,618.19. A portion of this amount is distributed to incorporated towns if there are any gas wells in those areas.

The resignation accepted by the board was that of Mrs. Betty Howard who has been librarian at Fort Ashby High School.

E. M. Welshonice, assistant superintendent, said that all vacancies in the high schools of the county have been filled with the exception of the library post at Fort Ashby. He added that several vacancies do exist in elementary schools with no applications yet from certified teachers.

Forest Insect Detection In W. Va. Begins

Control Study Is Inaugurated

The Forestry Division of the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources, in cooperation with the West Virginia Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Forest Service, has begun a new program of forest insect detection.

Twenty-two Department of Natural Resources foresters and two state forest superintendents have established observation areas throughout the state. These areas will be checked on a regular schedule for the presence of certain forest insects.

Insects of main interest to the foresters are the fall cankerworm, spring cankerworm, forest tent caterpillar and the variable oak leaf caterpillar, all of which affect oaks. The white - pine weevil and the red - headed sawfly are also high on the interest list, as well as any other insect or disease that may be encountered during the examinations.

Forest resource managers can achieve their management goals successfully only when the forest resources are protected from harm. Forest insects and diseases have taken a leading role in destroying resources, and to adequately control them requires first that their presence be known and their fluctuations recorded.

Landowners detecting any forest insect or disease damage are requested to report it to the Forestry Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

W. Va. Reports 'Fox Rustling'

An employee on the Rabies Control Program, which has been sponsored jointly by the West Virginia Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture and Health, related in a recent work report that he suspects "fox rustling" while trapping near the Pennsylvania border in Monongalia County.

During the 23 continuous days of trapping, the employee frequently found his sets disrupted and the trap missing with evidence pointing to a fox having been present in the trap.

Since the State of Pennsylvania pays a four dollar bounty on foxes, the trapper feels that the West Virginia animals are being "bootlegged" across the border in Pennsylvania.

County-Wide Toll-Free Phone Service Sought

KEYSER — The Keyser-Mineral County Chamber of Commerce and Mineral County RAD, Inc., are co-sponsoring a program aimed at developing county-wide toll-free telephone communications.

In a letter mailed to the chamber membership, President Edgell L. Grayson pointed out, "We have been in contact with the two telephone companies serving our county and have been advised that they would give consideration to this project if enough interest is shown throughout the county."

"Therefore, we would like to ask your cooperation in this matter. Please, at your earliest convenience, address a letter to each of the telephone companies involved at the following addresses, asking that they give favorable consideration to this project: Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company, 70 Center Street, Keyser, and The General Telephone Company of the Southeast, Romney, attention of Ray Horne."

C&P serves Piedmont, Ridgeley and Elk Garden. General serves the remainder of the county with Fort Ashby and Burlington exchanges. Keyser subscribers (SU-4 and SU-8) can now dial Piedmont (EL-5), Westernport (EL-19) or McCoolle (ST-6, in addition to the Keyser numbers.

Arnold Palmer Wins Western Open Playoff And $11,000 Prize

Leading Money Winner Defeats Boros By Stroke

Pennsylvanian Posts One Under Par 70; Nicklaus Cards 73

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Leading money winner Arnold Palmer started fast and hiked his season earnings near the $100,000 mark Monday by winning by one stroke over U.S. Open champ Julius Boros in a three-man 18-hole playoff off for the $11,000 top prize in the Western Open Golf Tourney.

Masters and PGA champ Jack Nicklaus finished three strokes behind Palmer.

A fine short approach game gave Palmer a three-stroke advantage at the nine-hole turn and his closing 1-under-par 70 barely shaded Boros, who staged a furious but vain rally on the final nine to finish with a par 71. Nicklaus, finishing with bogeys on the final two holes, posted a 73.

Deadlocked At 280

This pressured showdown among golf's top three money winners came after they ended regular play Sunday deadlocked at four-under-par 280. Nicklaus has earned $79,590 and Boros $69,996 for the year.

Palmer now has won six tourneys this year for official earnings of $96,955. Boros and Nicklaus, by previous agreement, split the second and third money and earned $4,450 each.

Palmer seemingly had the Western playoff wrapped up after 10 holes when he stood four-under-par, while Nicklaus was even and Boros one over.

However, Boros turned on the pressure and bagged birdies on three of the next four holes, while Palmer missed a four-footer for a bogey 5 on the 13th and led the U.S. Open champ by only one stroke after the 14th.

Boros moved into a tie with Palmer on the 464-yard 15th when Arnie three-putted for a bogey 5 and Boros salvaged a par by sinking a six-footer.

As it turned out, Palmer backed into his second Western Open title.

Despite a bogey 4 on the 205-yard 17th, Palmer moved back into a one stroke lead as Boros lagged to a double bogey 5, missing his third putt from 18 inches. On the same hole, Nicklaus three-putted from 10 feet for his fourth bogey of the day.

Misses 5-Foot Putt

On the climactic 18th hole—a par 5,596-yard putt—Boros missed a five-foot birdie putt by inches. That was the contest, as Palmer also came up with a par 5, two-putting from seven feet, to clinch the top money.

Dick Radatz Saves Red Sox Win, 7-5

BOSTON (UPI)—The Minnesota Twins won the homer duel, but the Boston Red Sox escaped with a 7-5 game victory Monday night on the strength of another Dick Radatz relief job.

All but one of the American League's top four homer hitters engaged in the long distance battle. Harmon Killebrew was dropped into a first place tie in the home run derby by teammate Bob Allison.

But Radatz, making his 44th relief appearance of the season, struck out three of the six batters he faced and gave up only a double to end the home run spree.

Allison hit his 23rd tie for the top with Killebrew and Earl Battey hit his 21st. Vic Power and Don Mincher also homered for the Twins. Power's coming with one on, as homers accounted for all the Minnesota runs.

Boston's Dick Stuart hit his 22nd of the year with two men on in the first inning and Ed Bresoud added a solo homer, his 13th, in the same inning. Stuart also had a double and a single which narrowly missed the home run screen.

Boston starter Bill Monbouquette with relief by Radatz with one out in the eighth, got credit for his 14th victory despite throwing four home run pitches.

CHOICES ON TOP
NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers, leaders in the American and National League pennant races, were the pre-season choices of the United Press International's board of baseball experts.

Spahn Beats Westernport Posts Ninth Cincy, 8-2

Bags 340 Win, Aaron Belts 30th

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Warren Spahn, backed up by first inning home runs by Hank Aaron and Lee Maye, coasted to his 340th major league win Monday night by beating the Cincinnati Reds, 8-2.

The 42-year-old Spahn moved to within just three of becoming the major league's all-time left-handed strikeout king by retiring five Reds on strikes. Rube Waddell is just ahead of him with 2,505.

Aaron hit his 30th home run of the year, scoring Eddie Mathews ahead of him in the first to move into a tie for the major league home run lead. Maye followed him up with his eighth homer into the centerfield bullpen.

Spahn retired the first 11 men to face him and then served up Vada Pinson's 10th homer of the year in the 4th. Cincinnati's only other run came on a 7th inning homer by Frank Robinson, his 14th.

It was Spahn's 13th win of the year against five losses. Cincinnati starter John Tsitouris took the loss. He now has won seven and lost four.

Angels Tounce Cleveland, 11-0

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Felix Torres' grand-slam homer featured an eight-run third inning Monday night and Dean Chance pitched a three-hitter to pace the Los Angeles Angels to an 11-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Chance had a no-hitter until the seventh when Fred Whitfield got the first of his two hits—a two-out single that dropped just past the infield and into centerfield. Woody Held then clipped Chance for a single in the eighth and Whitfield followed suit with his second hit in the ninth, also a single.

Chance, a resident of nearby Wooster, Ohio, was honored before the game. He struck out 12 as he evened his record at 10-10.

Torres connected against Jerry Walker, who replaced starter Dick Donovan after the Angels had taken a 4-0 lead and had runners on first and second with one out in the third. Walker walked Ken Hunt before Torres drove the ball over the right centerfield fence. Walker retired the next two batters to end the rally.

Mazzone Whiffs 16 Cubs In 12-1 Victory; Mt. Savage Triumphs

Leo Mazzone pitched a three-hitter and mowed down 16 via the strikeout route as Westernport bagged its ninth consecutive victory over the LaVale Prates yesterday by the score of 12-1 and maintained its 3½ games lead in the Bi-State Pony Baseball League.

By fanning 16, Mazzone ran his total to 99 for the season. The win was his sixth against a single loss.

Westernport's 11-hit assault included circuit belts by Dave Imperio, Louis Newcomb and Gerald Miller. Mazzone rapped a triple and single and Miller and Jack McIntyre also had two hits each. Gary Rymer accounted for two of LaVale's three safeties. Gary Robinette, losing pitcher, struck out ten.

In other Monday contests, Mt. Savage defeated Frostburg's Little Moes, 4-1, Lonaconing topped Cresaptown, 9-6, and the Frostburg Mounties trimmed the LaVale Cubs, 13-9, in a 5-inning affair, halted by rain.

Arthur "Pooch" Femi held the Little Moes to four hits and struck out ten. The big blow was Bobby Walsh's 3-run homer in the 4th inning. Femi and Colen Kennel hit two-baggers.

Tom Shockey smashed a pair of homers and a double, Charley Muir tripled and Bob Love garnered two safeties in Lonaconing's victory over Cresaptown. The win went to relief hurler Ed Evans. Tom Sindy had four-for-four to pace the losers at the plate while Barton, Rice and Shoup obtained two bingles each.

The Mounties hammered LaVale pitching for 14 blows, three of which were credited to Bobby Seibert who slammed a homer, triple and single. Bernie Connors pounded a homer and single and E. Smith and Dennis Clark garnered a triple and single each. Bill Poorbaugh and Pete Falco had a triple and single each and Randy Wiley and Jim Evans rapped two-base hits for the Cubs. PERFECT FIELDER
PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Outfielder Tony Gonzalez of the Philadelphia Phillies tied a major league record in 1962 when he had a 1,000 fielding percentage for the entire season. Gonzalez had 268 putouts, eight assists and nary an error.

Hall of Famer Ty Cobb, who batted a record .367 during his 24 years in the major leagues, hit only .240 for the Detroit Tigers in his rookie season.

CAGE STAR TO SHERIFF?—Clyde Lovellette, former St. Louis Hawks basketball star, has filed for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Jefferson County, Missouri. Clyde is now with the Boston Celtics. He's shown here practicing the fast draw with a six-shooter.

PATRONS in a Bronx, N. Y., theater got their money back when the power went off and knocked out the TV picture of the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson fight. The lights went out for Patterson, too.

Jimmy Piersall is losing his title as the world's highest priced clown (at $37,500 per). The Mets don't think Piersall's antics are a laughing matter any more.

Owner-coach George Halas has placed 11 of his overweight Chicago Bears at a special "fat man's table." Halas doesn't intend to grin and Bear it.

Sudden thought: Why don't they list every game the New York Yankees play as an "exhibition" that doesn't count in the standings? At the end of the season, the Yanks could play the winner for the right to go into the World Series.

If the American track and field stars don't make a better showing, they'll stand about as much chance of winning the 1964 Olympics as Republican hopefuls will have against President Kennedy in the same year.

Sonny Liston intends to change Cassius Clay's moniker into the "Fat Lip."

Gonzales To Coach U.S. Davis Cup Team

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Pancho Gonzales, former pro and amateur tennis champion, Monday was appointed coach of the United States Davis Cup team by Capt. Robert J. Kelleher.

A former Davis Cup player, Gonzales retired from the touring pro tennis ranks two years ago because he was tired of traveling and wanted to settle down to a regular home life. Since then he has made only occasional pro playing appearances in selected tournaments.

Barton Whips Gilmore, 8-3

Keyser Is Victor Over 'Coney, 10-1

Barton retained its one-game lead in the Twilight Baseball League by defeating Gilmore yesterday at Barton by the score of 8-3.

The win gave the Braves a 14-5 record and kept them one game in the fore of Keyser and Midland, deadlocked for the runner-up spot with 13-6 marks.

Keyser stayed in the running by walloping Lonaconing yesterday, 10-1, while Midland won by the forfeit route from the defunct Cumberland team.

Barton rapped the offerings of Cutter and Blake for 14 blows. Ellie Fazanbaker had three doubles, Johnny Johnson and Larry Suder had three singles each and Kenny Metz pounded a triple for the Braves. Curtis Johnson had two of Gilmore's seven safeties while Roger Wilson larruped a three-bagger.

Del "Butch" Ryan, of Keyser, turned in a 4-hit pitching performance and struck out four in deciding Fred Sloan, who whiffed six.

"Pooch" Taylor has two hits, including a triple, for Keyser and Fred Sloan and Marvin Miller rapped two-base hits for 'Coney.

Irvkup Is Victor In Flash Stakes

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Harbor View Farm's Irvkup upset the favored Alphabet by a length Monday to win the $23,800 Flash Stakes at Saratoga Springs and help inaugurate the 100th year of continued racing at the famed health resort.

Irvkup, an undistinguished performer who was fifth in the National Stallion his last time out, came on strong in the stretch to overtake First Violin and Trader and thus capture the traditional Inaugural Stakes for juve niles which enjoyed its 88th renewal Monday.

Yankees Want Long As Coach, Call Up Richmond Pitcher

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Yankees Monday asked waivers on veteran first baseman Dale Long for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Assuming the waivers go through on the 37-year-old Long, he will then be signed as a coach.

His place on the roster will be taken by Tom Metcalf, a 23-year-old righthanded relief pitcher from Richmond of the International League. Metcalf has appeared in 47 games with the Virginians this year, all in relief, and has compiled a 9-5 won lost record and a 2.37 earned run average.

Metcalf, a native of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., struck out 50 men in 67 innings through Friday's games. He stands 6-foot, 3 inches and weighs 175 pounds.

Long appeared in 14 games this year, mostly as a pinch-hitter, and had three hits in 15 at-bats for a .200 average.

Stan Musial Among 10 All-Time Stars

BOSTON (UPI)—Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals was the only active player selected among the top 10 all-time major leaguers Monday in a poll of the Academy of Sports Editors.

Ty Cobb, who compiled a .367 batting average during his 24-year career, edged out home run king Babe Ruth as the No. 1 player in the group.

Completing the list were Rogers Hornsby, Honus Wagner, Joe Di Maggio, Walter Johnson, Musial, Christy Mathewson, Tris Speaker, and Ted Williams.

Colts Recall Smith

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Colts baseball club said Monday it has recalled catcher Hal Smith from Oklahoma City of the Pacific Coast League.

Arnold Palmer Wins Western Open Playoff And $11,000 Prize

Leading Money Winner Defeats Boros By Stroke

Pennsylvanian Posts One Under Par 70; Nicklaus Cards 73

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Leading money winner Arnold Palmer started fast and hiked his season earnings near the $100,000 mark Monday by winning by one stroke over U.S. Open champ Julius Boros in a three-man 18-hole playoff for the $11,000 top prize in the Western Open Golf Tourney.

Masters and PGA champ Jack Nicklaus finished three strokes behind Palmer.

A fine short approach game gave Palmer a three-stroke advantage at the nine-hole turn and his closing 1-under-par 70 barely shaded Boros, who staged a furious but vain rally on the final nine to finish with a par 71. Nicklaus, finishing with bogeys on the final two holes, posted a 73.

Deadlocked At 280
This pressured showdown among golf's top three money winners came after they ended regular play Sunday deadlocked at four-under-par 280. Nicklaus has earned $79,590 and Boros $69,996 for the year.

Palmer now has won six tournaments this year for official earnings of $96,955. Boros and Nicklaus, by previous agreement, split the second and third money and earned $4,450 each.

Palmer seemingly had the Western playoff wrapped up after 10 holes when he stood four-under-par, while Nicklaus was even and Boros one over.

However, Boros turned on the pressure and bagged birdies on three of the next four holes, while Palmer missed a four-footer for a bogey 5 on the 13th and led the U.S. Open champ by only one stroke after the 14th.

Boros moved into a tie with Palmer on the 44-yard 15th when Arnie three-putted for a bogey 5 and Boros salvaged a par by sinking a six-footer.

As it turned out, Palmer backed into his second Western Open title.

Despite a bogey 4 on the 205-yard 17th, Palmer moved back into a one stroke lead as Boros lagged to a double bogey 5, missing his third putt from 18 inches. On the same hole, Nicklaus three-putted from 10 feet for his fourth bogey of the day.

Misses 5-Foot Putt
On the climactic 18th hole—a par 5,596-yard test—Boros missed a five-foot birdie putt by inches. That was the contest, as Palmer also came up with a par 5, two-putting from seven feet, to clinch the top money.

Dick Radatz Saves Red Sox Win, 7-5

BOSTON (UPI)—The Minnesota Twins won the homer duel, but the Boston Red Sox escaped with a 7-5 game victory Monday night on the strength of another Dick Radatz relief job.

All but one of the American League's top four homer hitters engaged in the long distance battle. Harmon Killebrew was dropped into a first place tie in the home run derby by teammate Bob Allison.

But Radatz, making his 44th relief appearance of the season, struck out three of the six batters he faced and gave up only a double to end the home run spree.

Allison hit his 23rd to tie for the top with Killebrew and Earl Battey hit his 21st. Vic Power and Don Mincher also homered for the Twins. Power's coming with one on, as homers accounted for all the Minnesota runs.

Boston's Dick Stuart hit his 22nd of the year with two men on in the first inning and Ed Bressoud added a solo homer, his 13th, in the same inning. Stuart also had a double and a single which narrowly missed the home run screen.

Boston starter Bill Monbouquette with relief by Radatz with one out in the eighth, got credit for his 14th victory despite throwing four home run pitches.

Robaire Admits Slaying Woman In California

Youth Arrested Here On Friday

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — A young handyman formerly employed at a Buena Park motel admitted Monday that he killed a Beverly Hills businesswoman in the motel earlier this month, police reported.

Capt. Virgil Lounsbury said Marvin M. Robaire, 20, made the admission shortly after he was returned to California from Cumberland, Md.

Officers then took Robaire to the Kit Carson Motel where he promised he would re-enact the slaying.

The victim, Mrs. Marjorie Newton, 43, was found in one of the rooms July 16, bludgeoned to death. Robaire disappeared the same day.

When $265 was reported missing from the motel office, police issued a bulletin for Robaire charging grand theft. He was arrested in Cumberland, Md. last Friday.

Mrs. Newton, a field director for Facts Consolidated, had come to Buena Park to transact business for the research firm. Her husband, Edward, and her daughters, Betsy and Nancy, had remained at the family home in Reseda.

Capt. Lounsbury said Robaire related that he had spent 18 months in Patuxent Institution in Maryland.

"I felt sorry after I hit her," Robaire said as he re-enacted the slaying. "When I saw the blood . . . I went to the bathroom and wet a washrag. Then I saw blood on the pillow, so I got another fresh washrag and towel and tried to make her as comfortable as possible before I went out the window."

The young man, a slender six-footer, was captured in Cumberland, Md., last Friday. Authorities said he was trying to break into a nurse's home when apprehended.

Robaire, employed at the motel as a handyman, said he entered Mrs. Newton's room through a bathroom window. After describing her slaying, he walked about 40 feet and showed officers the death weapon—a piece of wood which still lay on a pile of lumber.

"I hit her several times with this two-by-four," he said. ". . . there was so much blood. I felt sorry for her."

Briefs Troops On Battle Plans

Dr. Frank T. Harrat, Frostburg physician who will take the part of General B. F. Kelley, commander of Union troops in the reenactment of the Battle of Folcks Mill Saturday, is seen kneeling, studying a map of the Cumberland area. To his right, kneeling, is Boyd S. Dawson, who will be in general charge of the battle reconstruction and is acting as Gen. Kelley's aide. Standing by the briefing, left to right, are Bobby Martin, James Patton, Charles B. Cole, Gene House and Woodrow Simmons. The reenactment of the battle will be staged Saturday, beginning at 2 p. m. on the Cumberland Fairgrounds.

Police Continue Oakland Native Death Probe

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — The Geauga County sheriff said Monday four men told him they thought a 20-year-old Maryland divorcee was drunk the night she was strangled.

The body of Mrs. Norma J. Burns, formerly of Baltimore, was found Friday in a field in a remote part of Newbury Township. Sheriff Robusky said that four men told him they put Mrs. Burns in an old car at a tavern at Kewanis Lake last Monday night. They said she appeared to be drunk and they put her in the car so she could sober up.

However, Sheriff Robusky said that no excessive alcohol was found in the woman's system in autopsy.

The body was found about a mile and a half from the tavern. Her purse was stolen, police said, but she had not been assaulted.

Mrs. Burns came here from Baltimore in January and had been employed as a full-time babysitter for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Clarke. She was not reported missing until Friday night, after the body had been found. The Clarkes said she had three days off and they assumed she was staying with relatives.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Helen Dumire lives in Oakland, Md. The Clarkes said Mrs. Burns had been critically injured in a Maryland traffic accident in March, 1961, which claimed the lives of her two infant daughters. She divorced her husband, Richard, soon after returning home from six months in the hospital.

Vepco Releases Construction Figures

Operating revenues for June of $15,269,000 and a net income for the month of $2,807,000 were reported recently by A. H. McDowell, Jr., president of the Virginia Electric and Power Company.

Vepco spent $36 million on construction during the first six months of this year, and one of the major expenditures listed was the Mt. Storm mine-mouth station in Grant County, W. Va.

Pocketbook Taken

Mrs. Betty Appel, 201 Grand Avenue, reported that a pocketbook containing about $8 was taken from the kitchen of her home while she was sitting on the front porch. The theft took place between 9 and 10 p. m. Sunday, she said. Capt. James E. Van of the City Police detective bureau is investigating.

Famed Civil War Outfits Will Take Part In Battle

Reactivated Civil War units from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio will join forces here Saturday for the reenactment of the battle of Folck's Mill.

The engagement will be staged between 2 and 3 p. m. in the northern field of the Cumberland Fairgrounds.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney has been invited by the Cumberland Continentals of the 2d Maryland Infantry Regiment to help review the troops at the end of the battle.

The original battle, the Continentals report, occurred near the intersection of Mason Road and U. S. Route 220, east of Cumberland.

Some 500 Union and Confederate soldiers will take part in the engagement.

Among the famed units which will take part are the Pennsylvania Bucktails, the Sharpsburg Rifles, the Smithburg Red Devils, the Governor's Rangers, the Ringgold Cavalry, the Riverton Invincibles.

The Warrenton Rifles, the Emerald Guards, the Garrison Forest Rangers, the Loudoun Light Artillery, Frederick County Volunteers, West Virginia Mountaineers.

The Chesapeake Artillery, the Henry Kyp Douglas Brigade, the Warren Sharpshooters, the Sherman Light Guards, McGregor's Battery, 1st Ohio Capitol Light Infantry, Company F, 1st Ohio Infantry, the Cumberland Continentals and the Old German Artillery.

As staged, the battle scene will condense to about an hour the events which took place on August 1, 1864, as some 3,000 Confederate troops led by Gen. McCausland attacked this city, which was defended by Union troops headed by General B. F. Kelley.

To help publicize the coming battle scene, Charles Breighner, 22 Mullen Street, has placed a display showing a typical battle scene in the Liberty Street window of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Another section of the window contains an outstanding display of weapons used by soldiers of the North and South in the Battle between the States.

The reenactment is sponsored by the Allegany County Civil War Centennial Commission.

Local Man Gets 6 Months At House Of Correction

A local man was sentenced yesterday to six months in the Maryland House of Correction in connection with the theft of a car from Gulick's Auto Exchange. Samuel W. Brown, 23, of 204 Valley Street, was arrested Friday shortly after the theft on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, driving without a permit and crossing a double line.

Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt found guilty on all three charges. Fines of $100 were suspended on the two traffic counts, and a six month sentence given in the unauthorized use charge.

A. E. Stein, sales manager at Gulick's, stated that Brown and a friend took a car from the lot for a test drive. An attendant who accompanied the pair was forced out of the car on South Mechanic Street, and he returned to the lot on foot to report the incident.

State Police were notified and Trooper John W. MacFarland and Tfc. Paul Fiorita arrested Brown near Flintstone at 7 p. m. Friday. The second man was not with him at the time of the arrest. Magistrate Weatherholt said that the man is known to the court and local police.

She is the first member of the Fulton Myers auxiliary unit to hold a state office in the auxiliary.

City Is Urged To Improve Valley Road

Petitions Are Given To Council

Petitions signed by 680 city and county residents were submitted to the Mayor and Council yesterday urging improvement to Valley Road.

Members of the Mayor and Council generally agreed the road did need improvement and widening but said lack of money has prevented a major repair job and that the city would have to wait until this fiscal year's budget was completed to see what can be done.

The petitions were submitted by Richard Hughes, RD 1, Valley Road, and Mrs. Hughes also spoke briefly concerning the Valley Road condition. Also submitted were letters addressed to the Allegany County Board of Education from bus drivers which Mrs. Hughes said pointed out the dangerous conditions which exist.

Not All Residents

Mr. Hughes said the petitioners are not all residents of the city but the fact they signed indicates interest in improving the road. If the city tends to stand idle, he said, "then you are only indicating stagnation. So far all we have gotten is lip service."

He said a year ago, residents were promised that the road would be improved 100 feet at a time, but this has not been done.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said his department had installed 25 mile an hour signs and blinker lights on the dangerous stretch and noted that some plans had been discussed for widening the road which is located within the city limits. This widening could not be done, however, until poles were moved, he added.

Mr. Hughes said that in the past year, estimated cost of the road improvement has increased by $35,000 and that the project could also aid the city in relieving congestion at Bedford and Frederick streets by taking some traffic off those streets.

Keegan said a traffic checker had been used on Valley Road. Lt. Gordon E. Hite said the traffic checker was made during the period June 16-22 in the last block before the city limits and out of the heavier residential area.

Traffic was counted going both ways, he said. During the period, total vehicle traffic (both ways) was 14,915. In one 25 hour period (June 16) there were 2,326 and during another 24 hour period (June 17) there were 1,830.

Mrs. Hughes said traffic is heavy and large trucks pose a danger to children.

Question Of Money

Mayor Earl D. Chaney expressed the opinion the road always has been dangerous and something should be done, but any work will depend on this fiscal year's budget. He said the city has to operate much like a home—there is only so much money with which to do things.

Mrs. Hughes said she had been told by County Commissioners Robert Little Ebert and Russell Carder that they planned to contact the city about Valley Road and asked Mayor Chaney if they had. The Mayor said "No" but expressed the belief that they would.

The Mayor said the road should have been improved a long time ago "but it is a question of money."

The petitions request improvement at the intersection of Chestnut Street to the boundary line. Grading, widening, resurfacing and installation of more substantial safety guard railing are requested.

Torpedoman Assigned

Richard C. Thompson, torpedoman seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Thompson, of RD 2, Mt. Pleasant Road, is serving aboard the destroyer, USS Conway, an anti-submarine warfare specialty ship. The USS Conway recently embarked on a four-month cruise with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Games Day Slated On Playgrounds

Three Age Groups Will Compete

The annual Intra-City Games Day will be held Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at North End Playground, according to Mrs. Eva Hogan, general playground supervisor.

Featured will be tournaments in box hockey, horseshoes, kalah and checkers. Twelve prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Competition in each event will be scheduled in three age groups: 6-8, 9-12 and 13-16.

Supervisors in the box hockey tournaments will be Stephen Johnson, West Side, and Walter Turner, Frazier Playground director.

Two Supply Companies Are Entered

Breaking and enterings occurred at two neighboring establishments located on McMullen Highway over the weekend, and authorities think that the same person or persons were involved in both entries.

Tfc. Bernard J. Chabot of the State Police reported that the Western Maryland Lumber and Supply Company was broken into between 9 p. m. Saturday and 2 a. m. Sunday and that a check writing machine valued at $100, about $10 in stamps and $10 in cash were taken.

Two safes at the Hiser Supply Company in an attempt to remove their contents, reported Allegany County Investigator William F. Baker and Cpl. Milton G. Hart. Access was gained to a safe containing files, but a second safe, in which money is normally kept, could not be opened. The entry is believed to have taken place sometime between Friday evening and 2:45 a. m. Sunday when the report was received.

Entry was gained by breaking a pane of glass in a rear window and unlocking the window. Several locked doors inside the building were forced, said Mr. Baker.

The Western Maryland Lumber and Supply Company was also entered via a window, reported Tfc. Chabot, and once inside the planing mill area, the man or men forced a second story window to enter the office building.

The building, Tfc. Chabot, added, was also entered about three months ago.

PPG Reports Quarter Sales, Earnings Up

Improvement Seen Since Early April

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's second quarter sales and earnings were improved over those of a year ago.

Sales for the second quarter of 1963 amounted to $205,296,000 compared with $171,245,000 for the second quarter of 1962. Net earnings for the current quarter were $13,541,000 equivalent to $1.28 per share as compared with net earnings of $12,710,000 or $1.19 per share for the comparable quarter year in 1962.

David G. Hill, company president, said that sales began to improve significantly in early April after a disappointing first quarter and were sustained at higher levels throughout the quarter.

This improvement was due partially to normal upward seasonal trends in glass and paint products required by the construction industry.

Mr. Hill reported that prices continued to be soft in many of the company's product lines, particularly glass, fiber glass and chemicals. This tended to hold earnings below levels which might have been expected from the improved 1963 sales volume.

With respect to the substantial sales gain, Mr. Hill said this was due largely to the inclusion of figures this year of the sales of certain subsidiaries not included last year.

Net earnings of $20,063,000 for the first half of 1963 were off slightly from the $20,935,000 reported in the corresponding period of 1962. Per share earnings were $1.89 for the first half of 1963 compared with $1.97 per share for the first six months of last year. Half year sales were $371,686,000 compared with $322,166,000 for the first half a year ago.

Robaire Admits Slaying Woman In California

Youth Arrested Here On Friday

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — A young handyman formerly employed at a Buena Park motel admitted Monday that he killed a Beverly Hills businesswoman in the motel earlier this month, police reported.

Capt. Virgil Lounsbery said Marvin M. Robaire, 20, made the admission shortly after he was returned to California from Cumberland, Md.

Officers then took Robaire to the Kit Carson Motel where he promised he would re-enact the slaying.

The victim, Mrs. Marjorie Newton, 43, was found in one of the rooms July 16, bludgeoned to death. Robaire disappeared the same day.

When $265 was reported missing from the motel office, police issued a bulletin for Robaire charging grand theft. He was arrested in Cumberland, Md. last Friday.

Mrs. Newton, a field director for Facts Consolidated, had come to Buena Park to transact business for the research firm. Her husband, Edward, and her daughters, Betsy and Nancy, had remained at the family home in Reseda.

Capt. Lounsbery said Robaire related that he had spent 18 months in Patuxent Institution in Maryland.

"I felt sorry after I hit her," Robaire said as he re-enacted the slaying. "When I saw the blood . . . I went to the bathroom and wet a washrag. Then I saw blood on the pillow, so I got another fresh washrag and towel and tried to make her as comfortable as possible before I went out the window."

The young man, a slender six-footer, was captured in Cumberland, Md., last Friday. Authorities said he was trying to break into a nurse's home when apprehended.

Robaire, employed at the motel as a handyman, said he entered Mrs. Newton's room through a bathroom window. After describing her slaying, he walked about 40 feet and showed officers the death weapon—a piece of wood which still lay on a pile of lumber.

"I hit her several times with this two-by-four," he said. ". . . there was so much blood. I felt sorry for her."

Police Continue Oakland Native Death Probe

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — The Geauga County sheriff said Monday four men told him they thought a 20-year-old Maryland divorcee was drunk the night she was strangled.

The body of Mrs. Norma J. Burns, formerly of Baltimore, was found Friday in a field in a remote part of Newbury Township.

Sheriff Robinsky said that four men told him they put Mrs. Burns in an old car at a tavern at Kwanis Lake last Monday night. They said she appeared to be drunk and they put her in the car so she could sober up.

However, Sheriff Robinsky said, that no excessive alcohol was found in the woman's system in autopsy.

The body was found about a mile and a half from the tavern. Her purse was stolen, police said, but she had not been assaulted.

Mrs. Burns came here from Baltimore in January and had been employed as a full-time babysitter for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Clarke. She was not reported missing until Friday night, after the body had been found. The Clarke said she had three days off and they assumed she was staying with relatives.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Helen Dumire lives in Oakland, Md. The Clarke said Mrs. Burns had been critically injured in a Maryland traffic accident in March, 1961, which claimed the lives of her two infant daughters. She divorced her husband, Richard, soon after returning home from six months in the hospital.

Reactivated Civil War units from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio will join forces here Saturday for the reenactment of the battle of Folck's Mill.

The engagement will be staged between 2 and 3 p. m. in the northern field of the Cumberland Fairgrounds.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney has been invited by the Maryland Continental of the 2d Maryland Infantry Regiment to help review the troops at the end of the battle.

The original battle, the Continentals report, occurred near the intersection of Mason Road and U. S. Route 220, east of Cumberland.

Some 500 Union and Confederate soldiers will take part in the engagement.

Among the famed units which will take part are the Pennsylvania Bucktails, the Sharpsburg Rifles, the Smithburg Red Devils, the Governor's Rangers, the Ringgold Cavalry, the Riverton Invincibles.

The Warrenton Rifles, the Emerald Guards, the Garrison Light Artillery, the Loudoun Light Artillery, Frederick County Volunteers, West Virginia Mountaineers.

The Chesapeake Artillery, the Henry Kyd Douglas Brigade, the Warren Sharpshooters, the Sherman Light Guards, McGregor's Battery, 1st Ohio Capitol Light Infantry; Company F, 1st Ohio Infantry, the Cumberland Continentals and the Old German Artillery.

As staged, the battle scene will condense to about an hour the events which took place on August 1, 1864, as some 3,000 Confederate troops led by Gen. McCausland attacked this city, which was defended by Union troops headed by General B. F. Kelley.

To help publicize the coming battle scene, Charles Breighner, 22 Mullen Street, has placed a display showing a typical battle scene in the Liberty Street window of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Another section of the window contains an outstanding display of weapons used by soldiers of the North and South in the Battle between the States.

The reenactment is sponsored by the Allegheny County Civil War Centennial Commission.

Local Man Gets 6 Months At House Of Correction

A local man was sentenced yesterday to six months in the Maryland House of Correction in connection with the theft of a car from Gulick's Auto Exchange. Samuel W. Brown, 23, of 204 Valley Street, was arrested Friday shortly after the theft on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, driving without a permit and crossing a double line.

Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt found guilty on all three charges. Fines of $100 were suspended on the two traffic counts, and a six month sentence given in the unauthorized use charge.

A. E. Stein, sales manager at Gulick's, stated that Brown and a friend took a car from the lot for a test drive. An attendant who accompanied the pair was forced out of the car on South Mechanic Street, and he returned to the lot on foot to report the incident.

City Is Urged To Improve Valley Road

Petitions Are Given To Council

Petitions signed by 680 city and county residents were submitted to the Mayor and Council yesterday urging improvement to Valley Road.

Members of the Mayor and Council generally agreed the road did need improvement and widening but said lack of money has prevented a major repair job and that the city would have to wait until this fiscal year's budget was completed to see what can be done.

The petitions were submitted by Richard Hughes, RD 1, Valley Road, and Mrs. Hughes also spoke briefly concerning the Valley Road condition. Also submitted were letters addressed to the Allegheny County Board of Education from bus drivers which Mrs. Hughes said pointed out the dangerous conditions which exist.

Not All Residents

Mr. Hughes said the petitioners are not all residents of the city but the fact they signed indicates interest in improving the road. If the city tends to stand idle, he said, "then you are only indicating stagnation. So far all we have gotten is lip service."

He said a year ago, residents were promised that the road would be improved 100 feet at a time, but this has not been done.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said his department had installed 25 mile an hour signs and blinker lights on the dangerous stretch and noted that some plans had been discussed for widening the road which is located within the city limits. This widening could not be done, however, until poles were moved, he added.

Mr. Hughes said that in the past year, estimated cost of the road improvement has increased by $35,000 and that the project could also aid the city in relieving congestion at Bedford and Frederick streets by taking some traffic off those streets.

Keegan said a traffic checker had been used on Valley Road. Lt. Gordon E. Hite said the traffic check was made during the period June 16-22 in the last block before the city limits and out of the heavier residential area.

Traffic was counted going both ways, he said. During the period, total vehicle traffic (both ways) was 14,915. In one 25 hour period (June 16) there were 2,326 and during another 24 hour period (June 17) there were 1,830.

Mrs. Hughes said traffic is heavy and large trucks pose a danger to children.

Question Of Money

Mayor Earl D. Chaney expressed the opinion the road always has been dangerous and something should be done, but any work will depend on this fiscal year's budget. He said the city has to operate much like a home—there is only so much money with which to do things.

Mrs. Hughes said she had been told by County Commissioners Robert Little Ebert and Russell Carder that they planned to contact the city about Valley Road and asked Mayor Chaney if they had. The Mayor said "No" but expressed the belief that they would.

The Mayor said the road should have been improved a long time ago "but it is a question of money."

The petitions request improvement at the intersection of Chestnut Street to the boundary line. Grading, widening, resurfacing and installation of more substantial safety guard railing are requested.

"This request is being made after years of inconvenience and disregard for safety of children who attend both public and parochial schools within the City of Cumberland," the petition stated.

Torpedoman Assigned

Richard C. Thompson, torpedoman seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Thompson, of RD 2, Mt. Pleasant Road, is serving aboard the destroyer, USS Conway, an anti-submarine warfare specialty ship. The USS Conway recently embarked on a four-month cruise with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.
